The Rutland Convention---A Curious Gathering.

Free-Lovers---Spiritualists---Trance-Mediums---Abolitionists---And All Sorts of Queer People.

Special Report for the New-York Times.

FIRST DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The Resolutions Introduced but Not Decided Upon.

UNDER A TENT, RUTLAND, VT., Friday, June 25, 1858.

A tent has been pitched on an open space of ground in Rutland, to receive the members of the "Free Convention." A medley of people, of all sorts of shapes, of heterodox notions; white, black, partially black, badly sun-burned and fair in face, have come up to have sweet counsel together. The gathering is free to all ways. Its intention is to discuss abolitionism, spiritualism, free-love, free-trade, and all other sweet things. They say that the Rutland population is extremely indignant at this irruption, and some good stories are floating about; of which more presently. The first chapter must be got of the the waiting man.

The Convention opened at the Tent, punctually at an o'clock this morning. It was called to order by Mr. Isaac Larrow, a merchant in Rutland, who made a little speech, declaratory of the fullest degree of freedom to anybody who chose to be "around." Then he stated that a Committee on Nominations had fixed matters nicely beforehand. Their nominations were read, and then the Convention elected the following males and females to perform the heavy work:

President—Rev. Asher P. Walker, of Glens Falls, New-York.

Vice Presidents—Dr. H. Koon, Gibson Smith, Thos. Middleton, Henry C. Wright, L. Ross Sherman, Thomas Joseph Adams, A. Kibbon, Mary L. Sweetser, P. P. Clarke, G. F. Kelley, E. E. Holden, Miss A. W. Sprague, Rev. Joshua Young, Mrs. Sarah A. Burton, E. E. Fay, G. F. Hendee, Wm. Weston and Amidon Rice.

Secretaries—Wm. H. Root, A. B. Armstrong, J. R. Frost, N. Weaks, L. Clark.

The President made a few observations of the usual character.

Mr. Immanuel, a gentleman connected with the Liberator, was appointed official reporter of the Convention.

Letters have been received from the Progressive Friends in Pennsylvania, and another Society. So gratuitously long were they, that they were instantly laid on the table, till the sun went down, and still repose there.

The Platform was then produced. It consists of fifteen resolutions, covering all sorts of subjects. The President read them off, one by one, and then they were laid over for consideration.

The are as follows:

INDIVIDUALITY.

1. Resolved, That the authority of each individual soul is absolute and final, in deciding all questions as to what is true or false in principle, and right or wrong in practice. Therefore, the individual, the Church, or the State, that attempts to control the opinions or the practice of any man or woman, by authority of power outside of his or her own soul, is guilty of a flagrant wrong.

SLAVERY.

2. Resolved, That Slavery is a wrong which no power in the Universe can make right; therefore, any law, constitution, court or government, any church, priesthood, creed or Bible, any Christ or any God that by silence or otherwise authorizes man to enslave man, merits the scorn and contempt of mankind.

SPIRITUALISM.

3. Resolved, That the phenomena or what is called modern Spiritualism have abundantly demonstrated the fact that an intelligent intercourse between embodied and disembodied human spirits is both possible and actual. That the question of the possibility and actuality of spirit-intercourse is opposed to all despotism, impurity and pretentiousness, and conduces to the inauguration of the only authority consistent with the human soul, its favorable to sound morality.

WAR AND DEATH PUNISHMENTS.

4. Resolved, That it is always wrong and inexpedient for man to take the life of man; therefore capital punishment, war, and all preparations for war, are wrong and inconsistent with the interests of individuals and society.

MARRIAGE.

5. Resolved, That the only true and natural marriage is an exclusive conjugal love between one man and one woman; and the only true home is the isolated home based on this exclusive love.

MATERNITY.

6. Resolved, That the sacred and important right of woman is her right to decide for herself how often, and under what circumstances, she shall assume the responsibility and be subjected to the sufferings and cares of maternity; and man can commit no greater crime against woman as wife and mother, against his child, against society, and against humanity, than to impose on her a maternity whose responsibility and suffering she is not willing to accept and endure.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

7. Whereas, The assumed superiority of man over woman has held her in submission and entailed misery and dependence on the sex, and consequently, misery on the race; therefore,

Resolved, That immediate steps should be taken to remove that error and its consequences, and place woman politically, industrially, educationally and socially on perfect equality with man.

THE BIBLE.

8. Resolved, That nothing is true or right, and nothing is false or wrong, because it is sanctioned or condemned by the Bible; therefore the Bible is powerless to prove any doctrine to be true, or any practice to be right; and it should never be quoted for that purpose.

FREE TRADE.

9. Resolved, That natural justice, individual and social morality, the peace and material wealth and prosperity of the nations, the spirit of human brotherhood, demand that all international tariffs be immediately and forever abolished, and that Governments in all their various departments be supported by direct taxation.

LAND REFORM.

10. Resolved, That the earth, like the air and light, belongs in common to the children of men on it; each human being is alike independent; each child, by virtue of his existence, has an equal and inalienable right to so much of the earth's surface as is convenient by proper culture to his support and perfect development, and none has a right to any more; therefore all laws authorizing and sustaining private property in land, for the purpose of speculation, and which prevent men and women from possessing any land without paying for it, are as unjust as would be laws compelling them to pay for air and light, and ought to be at once forever repealed.

THE SABBATH.

Whereas, The Jewish Sabbath is confessedly abolished by the Gospel Dispensation; and

Whereas, The same authority sets apart no other day to be similarly observed, therefore,

11. Resolved, That all efforts of church and priests to enforce the observance of the Christian Sabbath, as of Divine appointment, is a flagrant violation of individual right, and must be prosecuted in a dishonest disregard of the spirit and positive teachings of the New Testament.

SUNDAY DOCTRINES.

Whereas, A social being depends on his fellow man for the cultivation and development of his physical, moral and mental power; and,

Whereas, Owing to the limitation and vicissitudes of life, he can accomplish but little for his own or future generations; therefore,

12. Resolved, That the duties of man belong to man, and the time, talent and means spent on, or for any other purpose, is detrimental to human progress and a robbery to the race.

13. Resolved, That the moral law is the material growth of a healthy condition of social life, and that a study of the nature of man, and the relations he sustains to his fellow-man, can alone give him the knowledge of the laws and govern him rightly.

14. Resolved, That no system or creed can be useful that does not tend to the removal of ignorance, poverty, vice and suffering, and promote freedom, intelligence and happiness.

Whereas, the character of man is formed for him, by the combined powers of organization previous to birth, and influence after birth, therefore

15. Resolved, That it is the highest duty of society to investigate and remove the causes which have a tendency to form inferior or vicious character.

16. Resolved, That the time and devotion spent in religious services can confer no benefit on an infinite and independent Power, and can therefore be no virtue.

The Spiritualistic element prevails. The "Poughkeepsie Seer," ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS, has arrived, with a body-guard of six trance mediums,—male and female. HENRY C. WRIGHT made a speech here on Sunday night. Mrs. FRANCES D. GAGE made one last night. WRIGHT is to make another this afternoon. On the platform this morning sat Mrs. Ernestine L. Rose, Mrs. Julia Branch, Mr. Marble, Henry C. Wright, Thomas Curtis, Mrs. Gage and Mr. Henry Clapp, Jr., is on hand. Mr. GARRISON has not reported, nor Mr. Gen. W. Craig, whose names were in the list attached to the call. M.

Free-Love—Woman's Rights—Abolitionism—Spiritualism.

RADICAL ENCAMPMENT, RUTLAND, VT., Saturday, June 26, 1858.

My letter of yesterday was dispatched in a hurry and gave the resolutions as they were presented without detailed accounts of what the Convention proposed to do with them. The afternoon and evening sessions passed away without reference to them; nor did anything remarkable happen, although the Convention sat in a smoking heat till late at night.

The Business Committee reported an additional resolution, declaring this under the Divine government of progress, from the ground to the highest angelic society, is manifest by and through organization. It was laid over.

The "Harmonial Club" sang a Reform lay. Then JOEL TIFFANY made a long speech to the resolution just introduced. He urged the need of organization. He did not stand where Mrs. ROSE and others stood. He was in favor of associated enterprises. He believed in a union of individual efforts, and thought that real success lay always in perfect organization. TIFFANY's talk was earnest, somewhat desultory and very much spun-out, and some discontented spirits under the canvass canopy presently tired of it. He was finally destined to "hold up," and did so. This ended the afternoon's performances.

An informal series of advertisements followed. One brother announced that he had books on Woman's Rights for sale at the door. HENRY C. WRIGHT had a lot of books which he commended to the affectionate regards of the people. One, in particular, he praised enormously. Its title is suggestive: The Unwelcome Child; or, The Crime of an Undesigned and Undesired Maternity. It is a very funny production. No charge for this notice.

A third brother, likewise a sinner, also had publications to dispose of. While the assemblage fumbled for its coppers, the adjournment took place.

At nightfall the Convention came together again. The first thing in order was a speech on the Bible, by the Rev. A. D. MAYO, of Albany. This was a singularly conservative speech for such an occasion. Mr. MAYO is a trim, natty little gentleman, with a delivery marred by a disagreeable drawl; but his remarks had some sense in them. He held that Christianity was the soul of civilization, the glory of the Present, the hope of the Future. He could find no flaw in the character of Jesus. (Faint cries of "No.") He expressed but little sympathy for the extremes of radical religionism, and only towards the end of his speech showed any leaning to the queer notions of the people who surrounded him.

The gray-haired ex-candidate for the Presidency of the United States, WILLIAM GOODELL, had a word to say. But the time was not favorable. Discussion was not yet in order, and Brother GOODELL sat down discomfited; remarking, "Very well. But I thought this was a Free Convention." Brother GOODELL was disgusted.

Then came two female "trance mediums," who filled up two hours' time. One of these damsels was a Miss TEMPLE; she comes from the town of Bennington, in this State. Her age is said to be but 14, but she is big enough for 18, and quite pretty. A rose bud was stuck in her hair on one side, and a honeysuckle in the other. She talked for an hour, feebly imitating Mrs. CORA HATCH's mannerisms. I haven't the least idea what she was talking about, nor did the audience seem to be any wiser. After three-quarters of an hour, an impatient brother, in the "back part of the meeting," got up, with the celerity of a sky-rocket, to move that the spirits be compelled to govern themselves by the rules of the Convention. He intimated that it would be agreeable to many if the aforesaid young lady would sit down. Miss TEMPLE took the hint and subsided.

After her, another "medium" of the same sort, Miss SPRAGUE, came to the front of the platform. The spirits had a hard time of it to manage this female. She stood perfectly silent for some five minutes; the muscles of her face twitched; her lower limbs were unsteady; her hands moved spasmodically. She presently found the use of her tongue, and began the customary spiritual nonsense. I came away.

A stroll about the place, in the evening, convinced me that the people of Rutland are furious at the advent of this demonstration, as I hinted yesterday. The religious element of the town has been exercised in an unusual degree. Prayer has been offered that the Lord would graciously interpose to prevent the coming of the Free-Lovers and the abolitionists. Not a house has been opened to receive the members of the Convention. They congregate in the hotels and camp out in the public meeting-place. It is a curious fact that the President, Mr. JASON WALKER, is an Ex-Methodist minister. He comes from Glen's Falls, and laments his former error of doctrine. Mr. JOHN LANGDON, the manager of the Convention, is a leading merchant in Rutland. He is a prominent man in the place, wealthy and odd. It was he who called the convention to order yesterday. With this exception, the Rutlanders are "down" on the Convention and all that belong to it.

The Spiritualists had a clear majority yesterday. To-day the Free-lovers have had it. The Radical Abolitionists have been unmercifully snubbed so far; they feel the slight. To-morrow they may get their chance. The Woman's Rights women are here in strong force, led by Mrs. FARNHAM, Mrs. GAGE, Mrs. ROSE and other prominent females. They divided the honors with the Free-lovers in the latter part of to-day. The curious people whom you are in the habit of meeting daily in New-York are regarded with unmitigated wonder by the quiet Vermonters. ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS, with his queer hat and prophetic air, attracts much notice. PARKER PILLSBURY entertains select circles at the hotel. The President is not quite "up" to the extreme of Radicalism, and indulges in free comments to the newspaper correspondents. Mrs. ERNESTINE ROSE is active; so is Mrs. JULIA BRANCH. Both these ladies go for Free-love, on principle. They are regarded with a purely platonic affection by the brethren. M.

SECOND AND THIRD DAYS.

A Spicy Time on Free-Love---Very Broad Doctrines Freely Avowed.

A Small Bit of Abolitionism, Touches of Spiritualism, and a great deal of Woman's Rights.

IN CAMP, AT RUTLAND, Saturday, June 26, 1858.

This has been a great day in the "Free Convention," both inside and outside the tent. In the face of a sun which did its utmost to discourage enthusiastic demonstrations, the sessions were prolonged from the absurdly early hour of eight in the morning until the Rutland bed-time of 10½ P. M. All kinds of odd subjects were up for discussion, but through the whole ran an under-current of Free-Love. It popped up in the midst of colloquies apparently most foreign to it, and the Free-Lovers, who are as thick as black-berries here, are chuckling to think that they have had the day to themselves, to the intense discomfiture and disgust of the red-hot Abolitionists, who have kept up a running skirmish, unsuccessfully striving to get the whip-hand of the Convention.

The feature of the day was a speech by Mrs. JULIA BRANCH, of New-York, on "Free-Love." This lady is popularly known as the female leader of the Free-Lovers. She is an inmate of the "Unitary Household" in New-York—about which the TIMES had something to say a little while ago. The lady is petite, and on the sunny side of thirty. Heavy masses of curling brown hair fall down her face; her air is pleasing and taking. She is an individual of literary tendencies; writes for some of the Sunday papers in New-York; is a poetess; and is very well known. Her speech to-day had the merit of being a remarkably bold and frank exposition of her peculiar views. Those views are similar to the expressed sentiments of the followers of the BENEDICT, ANDREWS and UNDERHILL party, advocating the extreme of "Free-Love." It produced an odd sensation to see a good-looking woman rise to avow herself a Free-Lover; but the Convention received Mrs B. with immense favor. Her speech is so curious an exhibition of the doctrines of the Free-Lovers, that it possesses sufficient interest to be published entire. Here it is with an accompanying resolution, which, by the way, was tabled to give place to a substitute offered by STEPHEN FOSTER.

MRS. JULIA BRANCH'S DEFINITION OF "FREE-LOVE."

Mrs. BRANCH said:

To my mind this resolution means nothing, or it is exceedingly incomprehensive, and I am aware that I have chosen almost a forbidden subject; forbidden from the fact that any one that can and dare look the marriage question in the face and openly denounce the marriage institution as the sole cause of woman's degradation and misery, is an object of scorn, of suspicion and opprobrious epithets.

I ask of that now as I did formerly of the Church. Is it so sacred that it cannot be questioned? Is it so absolute that it defies argument?

LUCY STONE said to me at the recent Woman's Rights Convention held in New-York, "The marriage question must and will come day be discussed." I asked, "Why are you not willing that it should be discussed now and here?" She did not think it a proper place; their platform was not a free one; they wished the rights of women in regard to voting settled that and there, and that would settle all other rights.

I asked, "How can she have the right to vote, when she has not even the right to her name in the marriage bonds?"

She said, "It is a mistaken idea that woman is obliged to give up her name and take that of her husband, by the ceremony. I have not given up mine, and no law can compel me to. I call myself Lucy Stone, and shall always."

WHAT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED.

How would it have been with Mrs. BLACKWELL if she had kept the fact of the marriage ceremony a secret, and gone to a hotel with the intention of stopping a few days, with Mr. BLACKWELL, and signing her name LUCY STONE? Would they have been permitted to occupy one room? What do you suppose would have been the astonishment of the virtuous landlord at such proceeding, and what would have been his answer? Mrs. LUCY STONE BLACKWELL and every one else knows the act would be sufficient to denounce her in the eyes of society, as infamous woman.

The marriage ceremony is necessary to keep woman virtuous and respectable, and all intercourse with man out of its holy ritual, renders her an outcast and a thing to be despised. Is it because she is naturally vicious and wicked that bonds are placed upon her? Has she no nature that may not be prescribed and estimated by man-law-makers? Has she no inborn right that belongs to herself? As she stands now before the world, she has none. She has not even that kind compliment that is paid to man in the Constitution of the United States, "that man is endowed with certain inalienable rights." And to the marriage ceremony, I say she is indebted for her wrongs, for her aching heart, her chains, her slavery.

WOMAN MUST STRIKE THE BLOW.

Woman must strike the blow if she would be free and become the equal of man.

You speak of her right to labor—her right to teach—her right to vote, and lastly though not least, her right to get married; but do you say anything about her right to love when she will, where she will and how she will?

Yes, here is a stipulation for her in this resolution. "She is to have an isolated household with an exclusive conjugal love." This is very pretty in sentiment and MOORE beautifully expresses it in his "Fire Worshipers:"

"Oft in my fancy wandering
I've wished that little isle had wings,
And we within its fairy bowers
Were wafted off to some unknown,
Where not a pulse would beat but ours,
And we might live, love, die alone,
Where the bright eyes of Angels only
Would come on errands to intrude
A paradise so pure and lonely."

But this will not do for practical life where man and woman work from ten to eighteen hours out of the twenty four. The working class are by far the larger class, and the isolated household is the worst place in the world for them. The man comes home to his meals which are set on the table amid crying children and the sickly despairing face of his wife—there is no social life. Even the exclusive conjugal love that bound them together in the marriage ceremony has long since settled into the mildest form of friendship. The enthusiasm and ardor, and poetry, and sacredness are forever destroyed by constant familiarity in the isolated household.

Just as woman is isolated and confined within the limits of a home, just so will her offspring be narrow-minded, bigoted and selfish; just as she is free in her thoughts, aspirations, making her home wherever she chooses, just so will her children be broad and expansive in their ideas, noble, and great and honorable in virtuous deeds, benevolent in heart and tolerant in all things, however opposite to them, because they feel within that they have not only the perfections but the imperfections of humanity.

We have lived in the ideal life too long; we want something practical. We have planted rank weeds, and we are cultivating them with as much nicety as we would bean ifful flowers. We have gone down into hidden love and have lived in the eyes of the past as though the present was too weak to bear the weight of our thoughts. We crawl on our hands and knees in the childhood of knowledge, fearing to rise lest the weight of our brains should topple us over. We live in dead men's graves, waiting for some angel to roll away the stone and give us light and liberty and individuality. Let me draw a picture of the isolated home, and one that came under my own observation.

A LAMENT.

See the woman with a care-worn face; long lines of grief have made deep furrows—her thin hand and shriveled figure—her dejected, weary air—her despairing tones tell of something that lies heavy at her heart. Surely, never Christ, bearing the great heavy cross up to crucifixion, could feel the deep woe that presses against her soul.

"Ah me," comes with a sad sigh as we lay our hand upon her head; "tell us," we say, and she throws open the inmost recesses of her soul, and tells the story of her life. How she aspired to be great from childhood—how noble thoughts took possession of her; how she loved, and married the object of her love; how dear the first-born of her heart grew to her; how it died, and she clothed herself in the habiliments of woe, and shut out the light of day to her heart, and sat down alone at home without friends or hope or consolation; how other children came to her, but they did not fill the void; the black veil was drawn down from between her and happiness, and planted in the soul by the arrow of affliction. There was no sympathy in the world, and she longed to lie down in the grave and rest.

We brush away the tears and bid her hope; hope has died out; we speak of husbands and children; they have no sympathy.

"Are you willing," we ventured to ask, "to look for one moment into your own soul?"

"I have always tried to do right, but circumstances were against me. My husband has long since ceased to love me, although he presses upon me the necessity of bearing children whenever he pleases. My children are perverse and wayward, and I don't know what to do with them. Some people go right through the world always light-hearted and happy; I never saw an unhappy day till I was married."

"But of yourself, have you never thought of a plan whereby you might be relieved from these troubles?"

"Oh, yes, of many, but I have no right to think or speak my sentiments, for I am married; if I do, my husband says it is better for me to attend to the domestic affairs, and he will do the thinking. He deprives me of female friends because women love to gossip; of male friends, for the world might talk about it; besides, he says, a mother ought always to be at home taking care of her house and children, and providing for her husband's wants, and I have nothing but death, and when that comes I shall go where everything will be bright and happy, and my soul's longings will be satisfied."

Now, I ask, what is that woman's life? Is she what God intended she should be?

No! She was made fair and beautiful in childhood, given those noble aspirations to cultivate in the garden of her soul.

WOMAN SELLING HERSELF.

What did she do with them? Sold them with herself at sixteen, when she entered into the marriage contract, and thus bowed down her soul forever. In her isolated household, she throws away her life, and added to the ten men already children thrust into the world half made up—children of chance, children of lust, abortions who feel that they have no right to existence—children of disease, whose tainted flesh and running sores are a disgrace and an everlasting reproach to the morals and purity of any community.

STRONG DOCTRINE.

BYRON cursed his mother for his deformed feet, and there are thousands and thousands of children cursing the sacred name of mother for their deformed mental and moral conditions.

Mrs. GAGE, Mrs. ROSE, Mr. WAGNER, and others, go back to the mother's influence, and go a step further back, and say it is the marriage institution that is at fault. It is the binding marriage ceremony that keeps women degraded in mental and moral slavery. She must demand her freedom—her right to receive the equal wages of man for her labor—her right to bear children when she will, and by whom she will.

Woman is not totally depraved. She will never abuse one right that is given to her, and she will never step aside from her own nature. If she desires to go to the ballot-box, it is because there is a wrong somewhere, and she takes that way to right it. If she desires to become a lawyer, it is because there are laws to be redressed and made better. If she desires to preach, it is because she feels the woes and afflictions of humanity. If she desires rights, it is because she needs them.

WOMAN SHOULD MAKE HER OWN CHOICE.

"I believe in the absolute freedom of the affections, and that it is woman's privilege, aye, her right, to accept or refuse any love that comes to her. She should be the ruling power in all matters of love, and when her love has died out for the man who has taken her to his heart, she is living a lie to herself, her own nature, and to him, if she continues to hold an intimate relation with him.

And so is man's relative position to woman. When his love has died out, and he continues to live with his wife, on any consideration, he strikes a blow to the morality of his nature, and lives a a life of deception, not only to her and society, but he is responsible for all the crimes that his children, born under those circumstances, are liable to commit."

A gentleman said to me, a little time ago, "My wife is a woman's rights woman. She talks of her rights, and I allow it, but she really has none. I am her husband; she is my property, and if I do not live a thing I say so; and I do not consider she has any right to dispute it. I do not hold any argument, for I consider my will law. And if I loved a woman, and was not bound to her by the marriage ceremony, I should not think of disputing her will or wishes, for fear she would show me the door, and I should have no alternative but to go out of it. Her will is absolute, for I have no claim upon her, and she is justified in all she does, so it is necessary to guard myself and movements in order to retain the love and respect of the woman I love." What a pleasing prospect is this for the wife, who is rearing her children in her isolated household, and in looking for the husband immediate in thought as much as action, and respecting her in the sacred office of wife and mother.

WHAT IS MARRIAGE?

Why should woman tame herself into calm submission, and be the slave and toy and play-thing of man? What is marriage? Is it the linking together of two loving hearts in holy, sacred union? No! this, it seldom the case when compared to the many thousands upon thousands of marriages of convenience. Women are bought and paid for, as the negro slave is. She is estimated as a thing of barter, for a man counts the cost of his intended wife as deliberately as if he thought of keeping a cow, a dog, or a pig.

Now, what are the rights and privileges of woman in the marriage institution?

It gives us the privilege to assume Mrs. Brown instead of Miss Smith. That is an honor, no doubt, a great one. It relieves woman from the stigma of old maid. It gives us the privilege of being supported and attending to domestic duties—the privilege to see that the dinner is served at the proper hour for a hungry husband—the privilege, oftentimes, to sit up half the night to let the husband in from a delightful concert and spend supper that he has enjoyed with Mr. Jones and his beautiful wife.

Then we have a right; and listen, women of the Nineteenth century! The marriage institution gives you one right; one right that you have not, perhaps, hitherto valued—it gives you the right to bear children.

It is not a privilege; it is not an inheritance that your nature craves. But it is the law of wise men, who know very much better than you do when you need a child, and when you ought to become a mother.

Now, I say again, that resolution (referring to the one reported by the Committee) is incomprehensive. Love is not dependent on reason, or judgment, or education, or mental acquirements, or society, or control of any kind. It is an inspiration of the soul. It is a holy, sacred emanation from the most vital part of our nature, and to say when or where it shall be limited or restricted is a violation of our individual rights.

I may have taken an extreme side of the question, but only offer my views as my own, and wish that the resolution may be put in a more definite form, stating what conjugal love is, and to how few, or how many, an isolated household may be limited to. I will read a resolution that I think would bear more directly on the marriage question:

Resolved, That the slavery and degradation of woman proceeds from the institution of marriage; that by the marriage contract she loses the control of her name, her person, her property, her labor, her affections, her children and her freedom.

STEPHEN FOSTER AND HIS WIFE AGAIN.

STEPHEN FOSTER and JOEL TIFFANY sprang to their feet as Mrs. BRANCH sat down. The Chair awarded the floor to FOSTER. This individual has taken to wearing spectacles, and is more comely in personal appearance than he used to be on the New-York boards. STEPHEN was once decidedly seedy. He was improved in flesh as well as in his social relations. He declared to-day that his marital connections with Sister ANNE KELLY, are extremely happy. FOSTER held that the difficulties of Marriage grew out of the inequality between man woman. Woman is a chattel—a property. She has no equality with man in the marital relations. The whole world groans and travails in pain together. In STEPHEN's view, the lot of the man is as bad as, if not worse than, that of the woman. He claimed that the persecutor was always in a worse box than the persecuted. Still, STEPHEN (claiming to speak from experience) believed that the marriage relation was the only real good there was left in this sinful world. He didn't believe in upsetting it, in the way that Mrs. BRANCH proposed. He admitted that every man is a tyrant in his own family, as things now go; and that every woman is a slave-breeder, in the eyes of her husband. Mrs. BRANCH had abrogated the marriage relation; but he begged to ask—Is not the remedy worse than the disease? Bad as the world is to-day, the general upsetting of the marriage relation altogether would only turn the world upside down, and make it a perfect Bedlam. He agreed with Mrs. BRANCH as to the utter rottenness of the present condition of society, but he preferred to avoid extremes for a while longer. He thought milder means should be employed first, therefore he proposed to lay Mrs. BRANCH's resolution on the table, and offered an amendment to the original resolution; it is indicated in Italics below; it was carried:

Resolved, That the only true and natural marriage is an exclusive conjugal love between one man and one woman, based upon the principle of perfect and entire equality; and the only true home is the isolated home, based upon this exclusive love.

A DESERVING BROTHER.

JOEL TIFFANY claimed—with a strong appearance of heterodoxy—that the people couldn't see the difference between Free-Love and Free-Lust. Free Love was simply regarded as Free Lust. In the relations between the sexes, he believed that lust had more to do with the man's desires than love. In marrying a woman he married, not her love, but her sex. If, after marriage, she don't prove so useful as he thought she would, then his love, so-called, evaporates. He looks upon woman as a thing of purchase, as he would look on a horse. In this view, marriage becomes a matter of bargain. Men and women are not married. They unite on the plane of self-love, operating through sex. This is what the marriage relation undoubtedly is, and yet the community upholds the system. They think it is the gratification of this propensity that we call love. It is nothing of the sort. It is simply lust. But true marriage is not open to these objections. When a man finds in a woman all that his nature yearns for, and when a woman finds a man who stands as the full embodiment of her wishes, if the man and woman unite under such conditions, both are truly married. Woman then becomes to man a medium of inspiration. Man becomes to woman a source of strength and power. She unites with his soul. He cannot develop without developing her. They become one.

A VOICE—Which is the one?

TIFFANY—Both. (Laughter)

THE VOICE—Which owns the farm?

TIFFANY—Both—the man and the woman. (Shouts of laughter.)

CHAIRMAN—Time is up, Brother TIFFANY.

VOICES—Go on! Go ahead!

CHAIRMAN—Will the Convention extend Brother TIFFANY's time.

A GENERAL SHOUT—Yes.

Brother TIFFANY proceeded: Man uniting woman to strength and affection; woman gracing and sanctifying man; this is marriage. So long as men and women are wandering about seeking to find a boot that will fit, the sooner such a system is broken down the better. (Laughter.) Go to work at the man, and go to work at the woman, and prepare them for the conjugal relation. Let us have the law hold things as they are till we have tried this experiment. Marriage may be happy. The defect is not in the institution, if man had not been lustful. The man who is developed, redeemed from his sensual nature, must still have the old law continued over him. So long as man is gross, and selfish and lustful, the law must keep its hold over him. But let the individual who desires to be redeemed, first perfect himself. Let us not have license. (Sensation.)

Mr. TORREY—Will Mr. TIFFANY permit me to ask him a question?

TIFFANY—Certainly.

TORREY—Why say that a man who has committed one blunder in the course of his life, should be compelled to keep on committing blunders? (More sensation, and symptoms of a row.)

TIFFANY's time was now really up, so he did not pursue the subject.

MRS. ROSE'S DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

Mrs. ERNESTINE ROSE—We have had a very glowing description of conjugal love—true, perfect conjugal love. As a Woman's-Rights woman—nay, more, as a Human Rights woman, she could not but rejoice in her mite in the discussion. TIFFANY's description, she said, was beautiful. From her whole heart did she accept it. But facts are stubborn things. And what are the facts? They have been told here to-day by a woman yonder, (pointing to Mrs. BRANCH.) Mrs. ROSE went above, beyond, below the influence of woman. Ignorance and usurped authority have placed upon woman the stigma of inferiority. Therefore we want equality. Bring up woman to feel the right that is in her. Bring her up so as to make her an independent being, as man is. Cease to tell her from childhood to look up to man as her protector. Teach her that it is a dangerous thing to place the freedom of any one in the hands of another, whether that other be called king, prince, priest or husband. When woman is once recognized by the State as the equal of man, she will cease to be a slave. Give us the same chance that man has; in politics, in education, in property, in the marriage relation. Mr. TIFFANY had declared that man and woman were like a pair of scissors. But the law gave the husband the pair of scissors [laughter] and the woman has no right to cut with an implement to which she has contributed her half. [Laughter.] Mrs. ROSE added that she seldom spoke of herself, but on this occasion she would. Her references were to her husband. She was a married woman; had been married twenty years; perhaps had as many rights as she ought to have. But her husband was a law to himself. [Cheers.] She had no personal complaint to make. In this fight she battled for a principle, not that she was in an unhappy state in her own private affairs. She poke earnestly of what she felt to be a wrong.

A JOYFUL SHAKER.

Brother EVANS—a venerable Shaker gentleman, all the way from the County of Lebanon—was introduced. He expressed his great joy that the time had come when the Marriage relation could be discussed in a Free Convention. God is male and female—a dual being. Man should be made after the same pattern. Bro. EVANS declared that he did not believe the Bible was the Word of God; it was simply the record of the high spiritual experience of the men whose compositions it contained.

After some desultory discussion, there came

A ROW.

STEPHEN FOSTER expressed his disapproval of the way things were going in the Convention. He referred particularly to what he called the "outrage" inflicted upon Brother GOODELL last night.

A VOICE—Same, here.

Mr. FOSTER—This is the first meeting in my knowledge where the Chair has ventured to set aside the will of the Convention, declare a reply to an attack out of order, and afterwards award the floor to others, who occupied the time for an hour. He protested against the movement made to blink the whole question of Slavery. That topic had been put off to the tail-end of the programme for this afternoon, and it was uncertain whether it would find itself able to hang on to the tail-end. (Laughter and approbation.) If you limit one man, in God's name, (said SERVANT,) limit all. What he wanted was, perfect freedom on this platform. He was opposed to aristocratic privileges in a Free Convention.

Brother RANDALL pitched into Brother FOSTER, for his unqualified censure.

The Chairman put Mrs. ROSE into his seat, and defended himself in a two-minutes' speech. For a time there was a brisk cross-fire of recrimination.

The breeze blew over without any serious damage.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Then came Mrs. ELIZA W. FARNHAM, who was announced to speak on "Woman's Rights." She declared that Mr. TIFFANY's views "struck into the marrow of woman's nature." By way of introducing the views she entertained, she read a series of resolutions. They express the whole story, so Mrs. FARNHAM considerably. She said, in substance, as follows:

Woman has been the victim of the strongest feelings and passions of man. Woman has been the victim of society as well as of individuals, to her frailty and coarse cruelty in their face the monstrous evils which grew out of the wrong and wicked generation of human nature, and has slowly to contend against, however unknown and unpitied, for the reform of man's nature, after we have fully suffered this irresistible and overwhelming power to be felt. Woman has been denied the power to know and judge with which God has beneficently endowed us.

Resolved, Therefore, that we will diligently search into all the means and conditions by which the good of our race may be the most speedily secured; and that we will not only do our own duty, but we will earnestly seek to have woman will seek to unfold to her the knowledge and truth whereby they may be brought to act intuitively and wholly in the relation of parents as well before as after the birth of their offspring.

Resolved, That we regard the weight of this responsibility as resting upon women, and believe that the one person all the moments of her daily life she is pressed with a consciousness of her highest duties and responsibilities; and that in the work of human life she is freed from the oppression of woman's sex, the slavery of woman's condition, the wrong of woman's sex, the slavery of woman has been imposed, and is made equal to man, both as a woman and brother; and that her home, her grand and unmistakable as long as man is man, we believe no misconception or misunderstanding is necessary, and no impossible effort of mankind on the part of those who may thoroughly and clearly see the truth. Thus does woman have relationship with man, and has already merely been paid accomplished the great work in the regeneration, intuitive, spiritual nature which he has bestowed upon woman. Therefore,

Resolved, Finally, that the permanent claim upon the intelligent progressive life of our age and country is thus to increase woman in the greater and more important natural office; to enlighten her and through her instrumentality to make man sensible of the fearful consequences of her enslavement; to encourage and strengthen her to demand as her own and her children's inalienable right the freedom and control of her person in the marriage relation which alone could enable her to consult her nature, and its physical and spiritual capacity to perform her true office of motherhood; and that in the acknowledgment of the rank and freedom hereby claimed for her, we see the only source of a spiritual, enduring and harmonial civilization, as well as the hope of a nobler race than has ever yet occupied the earth; that we regard humanity at present as more like offspring of its dam than of its sire, and that by reason of the fact that man has been the positive power on all the planes of life which we have yet passed, and we can only look for its essential advancement above the intellectual and material refinement which so far is the experience of the masculine, by the embodiment in it of the intuitive life, harmony, tenderness, fortitude, integrity, purity and love, which are the characteristic elements of the feminine.

Mrs. FARNHAM, in supporting these resolutions, claimed that woman is made organically superior to man, as she is confessedly his superior spiritually. The discord that we hear concerning the marriage question, she attributed entirely to the general idea of woman's inferiority—a position which she utterly scouted. To her apprehension, this question will take an definite form whenever man would consent to judge from the physical in Nature what God intended the spiritual to be. Admitting this principle, we shall begin to understand the truth as it is. She believed that to-day, with the truths she had found, she could go into the Five Points, and by pleading with such women there as were yet capable of producing offspring, would never afterwards produce children so bad as they had produced—not through any eloquence she possessed, but in consequence of the power of the truths she could tell.

FREE-LOVE, WITH A VENGEANCE.

Mr. THOMAS CURTIS, a young and ardent gentleman from Pennsylvania, expressed his sentiments. They were rather startling. He said, after some preliminaries:

Our friends Mrs. ROSE and Mrs. GAGE have told you that they are married. So am I—although I have not been married twenty years, as they have been. I married myself to my wife, and she married herself to me; upon the express understanding, not that God sanctified it—we did not want God in the matter—not that it was sanctified by magistrate or priest, because we cast that idea aside, as none of their business—but because we say that we could in marriage better fulfill our highest and best use, and carry our happiness to the fullest extent. When we were married, we expressed that sentiment; and when we agree to separate, we shall accomplish that separation without the help of God, or priest or magistrate. We don't want the consent of either of the three. We do not want to be united because God unites us; and we will not be separated because God separates us. We will act upon our own judgment and opinions; each respecting the impressions, not what I state, or what she states, but the impressions which are for both, and which are the common property of all, and, as such, to be used by man and woman.

A resolution was adopted, timing all hands to ten minutes.

ATTACK ON THE BUSINESS COMMITTEE.

Brother CHANDLER accused the Business Committee of being one-sided, that they were Spiritualists, and favored people of that stripe above others. He had traveled twelve hundred miles to attend this meeting, on the supposition that it was a free Convention. He wanted to know if all were to have a fair chance, or not. Brother CHANDLER was deeply aggrieved.

A MORE SEVERE ATTACK.

Mr. CLAYTON claimed to be a Reformer. He likewise claimed that justice had not been done him as an individual. He drew up a resolution yesterday, embodying his views of reformation, but the Committee squelched it. It had not been presented to the Convention, and he believed it had been designedly withheld. As an individual, he claimed the right to be heard.

Mr. H. P. CURTING, as a member of the Committee, which had been assailed, defended the Committee.

Having given Free-Love and Woman's Rights a hearing, the members went on dinner.

SLAVERY.

At the afternoon session, Slavery was the topic. PARKER PILLSBURY led off in one of his usual speeches, violent and blood-thirsty. He attacked the Republican Party, declaring that it was more Pro-Slavery than the Democratic or American. Then he inserted a sharp stick under the fifth rib of the American Tract Society people, abused the clergy in general, and was very savage upon those unhappy mediums who occupied so much time last night to the exclusion of subjects more important than Spiritualism.

STEPHEN FOSTER and WILLIAM GOODELL followed. The latter gentleman has had a hard time. Four times in two days has he been ignominiously choked down; his time expiring, and the Convention refusing to extend it. FOSTER's speech was enlivened by a passage at arms between himself and a dissenter in the audience. The only good thing said by STEPHEN was his praise of the man who was brave enough to avow his convictions. Even if an individual swore himself to Satan, if he would only be honest about it, STEPH

CALIFORNIA.

The Fraser River Excitement—Effects of the New-Gold Discoveries Upon California.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, June 5, 1858.

The Golden Age leaves this morning with 600 passengers and a larger amount of gold than usual—in fact a heavier remittance than by any one steamer for a long time, from which fact you may make up your minds that the mines have not quite given out yet. There is a little more of the same sort left; but you will not have large remittances hence for some months to come, for the Fraser River excitement is playing the deuce with us. The rush continues, and the whole mining population seem to have become inoculated with the fever and are illustrating the restlessness and craving for excitement of the general population of California and all new countries. In the mining districts the villages are being depopulated. Claims are offered for almost nothing, and men who are making their $10 and $12 a day drop their picks and shovels, sell their undeveloped claims for a trifle, and away they rush for San Francisco, to take steamer for the new El Dorado. The excitement pervades all classes—hotel-keepers, barkeepers and editors are alike afflicted, and any man ambitious to make himself generally useful can for a small capital invest himself with all the honors of these several callings. The fact is, the mines are first being depopulated, and the effect is already apparent. Many quartz-mining and tunneling companies have been obliged to suspend operations for want of hands. Wages have nearly doubled, and hundreds of valuable claims are unworked. There is no longer any excuse for the idle; they can get work and good wages.

The effect of this excitement will for a time prove very disastrous to the traders in the mines and the merchants of San Francisco, and in fact to all classes, for there must necessarily be a great falling off in the receipts of gold. The traders will require no additions to their stocks for a long time, as their customers are not at. Consequently jobbers in San Francisco won't sell them anything, and may have to wait a long time for pay for what they have already sold. It will depress all branches of trade for a period. Can't be otherwise. Much time will be lost by the moving crowd before they begin to produce gold anywhere, and it will be some months before things begin to recuperate. And you may look for dull times in San Francisco for six months to come. Eventually, however, it will prove a benefit to California, as the departure of so many will open places for newcomers and their places being thus supplied increases the consuming population of the Pacific coast.

Until supplied from England direct, the Frazer River districts must draw their supplies from San Francisco, and gold from that region will consequently begin to flow in in return. What a pity it is that we did not stand up to 54.40, even with a little fight for it, instead of being kicked down stairs to 49. We can see it now. The great Yankee nation have got something to learn if they penetrate to the aforesaid 54 40. They will encounter for once a stable and firm Government, and learn, moreover, that they can't bully their way through that part of the world. It is something new for Yankees to dig up John Bull's soil for a living, and it's a long time since they have done it; but they are doing it now, and for once they will learn that one man is not as good as another, and a good deal better, provided he is the strongest, and that all the usual buncome about the Stars and Stripes and Hail Columbia isn't worth "shucks" where they are—fillibustering and squatterism won't do. There is a blessed probability that the throat-cutting, pistolizing gentlemen, and that class with very indistinct and unsettled notions and ideas on the questions of meum and tuum, will be brought up with a round turn—for the authorities thereabouts have already shown a firm determination to govern that country themselves.

As almost everybody knows, the entire tract of country north of 49° is under the control and government of the Hudson's Bay Company, and they are strong enough to enforce all rules and laws they lay down to the incoming population. They will not, of course, allow American steamers to navigate Frazer's River under the American flag. We would not allow them to navigate the Sacramento River, and seized several of their vessels on trifling and ridiculous pretences. The Company have also prohibited the rushing in of stocks of goods by traders and people who take advantage of the necessities of the miner to charge famine prices for their goods. They have announced that they intend to do all the trading themselves—that is they intend to furnish ample supplies at a moderate profit, and have already sent up a large amount of provisions, which they have ordered shall be distributed at a small per centage over cost and charges. This system continued will be a blessing to the miner, and he will not be robbed of his hard earnings by land-sharks. It will, of course, require a little time to get things regulated. At last accounts provisions were high; pork, 75 cents per pound; flour, 50 cents; sugar and coffee, 50 cents; syrup, $6 per gallon.

I saw a letter dated at Sutler's Diggings, May 20, the latest from that vicinity, from a gentleman who went up to take a look. He says paddling up Frazer's River was a long and tedious job, reminding him of old times on Chagres River when it was high, except that in the present case the water was as cold as ice. He says there is, undoubtedly, plenty of gold on the bars, but it will be impossible to get at it until the river falls in July. All accounts agree as to the richness of the diggings wherever a bar can be worked, and there is no doubt but what an immense amount will be taken out, and large wages realized by those on the spot; but it is a hard life. The country is perfectly wild, and a dense forest, full of warlike Indians, and with the well-known injustice of the miner towards anything of the genus Indian or Chinaman, and their foolhardiness, they will get up a series of little amusements in the way of pistoling and scalping quite edifying. It is the custom of miners generally to shoot an Indian as he would a dog, and it is considered a very good joke to shoot at one at long shot to see him jump as the fatal bullet pierces his heart; and when, in the spirit of retaliation, some poor, hunted relative watches his opportunity and attacks a straggling white man, the papers at once team with long accounts of Indian outrages; and yet the men that shoot down these poor Indians are not the ruffians we are led to suppose are always the authors of atrocities—but the respectable, sovereign people, brought up in the fear of God by pious parents, in the most famed locations for high moral character. The Indian and Chinese murders are more frequently committed by men brought up in the quiet country villages of Eastern States, and who return looking as innocent as lambs. There never yet existed so bad a set of men on the face of this fair earth as a certain class of the highly respectable sovereigns of the States who find their way to the frontiers.

It is much to be rejoiced at that the Frazer River Indians are of a serious turn of mind, and can't take a joke, and in their ignorance of the sports and pastimes of the great American Nation, may deprive some of the practical jokers of their "hatches."

Every Indian outrage in California can be traced to acts of cruelty and aggression on the part of the whites, that throw the Sepoys quite into the shade. The pure and good citizens of Oregon, having a few more horses to sell, are trying to get up another Indian war. They (the Indians) had collected in considerable force near Fort Walla-Walla, Washington Territory, some 300 miles up the Columbia, above Vancouver, and Col. SEBRYOR, with two companies of Dragoons and two of Infantry, in all about 200 men, had marched against them. The last reliable news from him was a letter from the Colonel to Captain KEARNEY, Quartermaster at the Dalles, saying that the Indians were in force awaiting him, and that he should attack them next morning. This letter was dispatched by express the same night. Subsequently, some three days after, an Indian came into Fort Dalles, and reported that there had been a great fight; that the Indians, some 1,500 in number, had defeated Colonel SEARYOR, taken his wagon-train and guns, and killed 50 of his men and three officers. This news was received here from Vancouver by the bark Live Yankee, which left the Columbia two days after the steamer. There has probably been a fight, but the result greatly exaggerated. No names of officers were given, of course, as the Indian bringing the intelligence knew none by name. We shall get authentic information on the return of the Columbia, and possibly by the Panama, now fully due from Puget Sound.

The steamers running to the Sound are doing a fine business. The Commodore (formerly the Brother Jonathan) ran on a rock the last trip, and came in leaking badly. As soon as she had discharged her passengers, she ran up to the Government Dry Docks at Mare Island, but, as the Docks were in use, she had to return, and, as it was found impossible to keep her free, she was beached. She will soon be got afloat, however, and resume her trips. I see it stated in a letter from Puget Sound that the Sea Bird has commenced running from Victoria to Fort Langley, which is not the case, as she will not be permitted to do so. The only steamer on the river is the Hudson's Bay Company's steamer Otter, a propeller of about 200 tons. The Sarpedon, a very fine boat, built by W. H. Brown, of New-York, and sent out to San Francisco in 1851, now owned by the California Steam Navigation Company, after being put on R. R. TICKNOR's Dry Dock, cempered and thoroughly overhauled, left for Puget Sound some two weeks ago—having been chartered by R. J. VANDEWATER, Esq., who, probably, ere this has made an arrangement with the Hudson's Bay Company to place her under the English flag, and run her from Victoria to Fort Yale, some 90 or 100 miles above Fort Langley. She is a fine boat, of great power, and admirably adapted for the purpose. She will make a clean profit of $30,000 a month easily, besides paying a heavy tax to the Hudson's Bay Company.

There is little else to write about but Frazer River and the new gold discoveries, it being the all-absorbing topic here.

Among the old Californians leaving by the Golden Age to day, I notice the name of FREDERICK BILLINGS, Esq., of the well known law firm of HALLECK, PEACHY & BILLINGS, who have been engaged in defending and prosecuting some of the most important law cases ever brought before any Courts of the United States—they have probably had more large cases than any lawyers in California; E. F. HOLLIDAY, Esq., well known all over the Western world as a heavy Government contractor at Fort Leavenworth and everywhere else from St. Louis to Oregon; Mr. ROBINSON, of Sacramento, the builder of the first mile of railroad ever built in California, now extended from Sacramento to the town of Folsom; 22 miles of as good road as ever car ran over; and a large deputation of old Californians besides, who go East to pass the Summer, and then return to this best place after all.

I was shown yesterday, a cane made from a stancheon taken from the old ship Cadmus, the vessel that brought LAFAYETTE to the United States in 1826. She had been lying in the harbor for the last three or four years as a coal hulk, and becoming too leaky for that service, was sold for fire-wood, and fell into the hands of the Chinamen, who buy up all the old hulls for the wood and copper, in which line the Johns drive quite a profitable trade.

There has been quite a number of fires during the last two weeks, and the b'hoys have had some little excitement and exercise running wid der machines. The last fire was a good four hours' job for them, and as usual, they ran foolish risks, and got singed a little. I smelt woolen myself.

We are having the greatest kind of a time luxuriating on strawberries and cream. Such whappers! As big as—but I won't tell, for you might say my story was a whapper!—but they are some. We have lots of raspberries, also a sprinkling of cherries. Strawberries sell at 50 cents per pound One man sent to market from Oakland to San Francisco, over three tons. The crops generally are fine, there's going to be plenty to eat, and as JIM DOWS is going to start his "rye juice" factory, there will be plenty to drink.

The water-works are progressing rapidly, and we shall soon have the "Croton" in every house. The main reservoir is at an elevation that will carry water over the tops of buildings in any and every part of the city.

The Chinamen are importing silkworm eggs in large quantities, and are going into the silkworm business extensively. We chaps that go fishing are making great calculations in having plenty of bait.

GEORGE CHRISTY and suite have arrived, and will open at Maguire's next week. We would like to see GEORGE and BILLY BIRCH together; one at the shirt-collar, and the other at the "Bones" end of the row of minstrels, it strikes me there would be some fun. They are very similar in their particular line, both good, and neither better than the other.

As you won't hear from me for a few months you may conclude that I am absent, which will be a safe and correct conclusion; but, in order that the TIMES may not be without a correspondent from these precincts, I have, with much persuasion, extracted a promise from a mutual and well-known knight of the quill, to operate in my absence, and drop you a letter each steamer. The TIMES will be a gainer, and the readers pleased with the change, for they will get more information and general news in one letter than I give them in six. So stand by for the "handsome Karnel," as he is called; he's "punks" at that business. PODGERS.

P. S.—12 o'clock.—The Panama has just arrived, and brings great news from Frazer River. I inclose an extra from the Alta office, from which you will get all the news.

A British Pacific Railroad.

From the Springfield Republican.

While the people and the Congress of the United States are talking about a railroad to the Pacific, quarreling over its location, and devising new schemes of plunder in connection with it, England and Canada are actively engaged in the undertaking, and, with the advantage of having a shorter route, and a portion of their line completed. The idea is entirely new to us; but, if our readers will take a railroad map, and see what a commencement of this work the Grand Trunk Railroad forms, its practicability will be evident at once. The Grand Trunk road has one terminus at Portland, the deepest port, we presume, on the Atlantic seaboard The other Eastern terminus is at Quebec, Montreal being, in fact, the principal point of shipping and trade. The road thus runs West eight hundred and fifty miles, passing through Toronto to the town of Stratford. From this point it is proposed to push it to Vancouver on the Pacific, about a distance of three thousand miles more. The Portland branch is built with British money. Thus, the English are 650 miles on their way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and are taking steps for the further progress of the work. We, in the meantime, are doing nothing towards getting into our hands the immense carrying trade between Asiatic and European ports.

The Journal des Empire, of Paris, gives the details of the movement in its present aspect. Its seems that a great expedition is about to start from London, to be commanded by Colonel Eliott of the Royal Engineers, and composed of a company of sixty engineers and a troop of forty men, under command of Captain Hale. At Vancouver these will be joined by one hundred men who are to act as pioneers, selected from the most experienced and hardy servants of the Hudson's Bay Company. Then the expedition will make its surveys for the completion of the road.

At Sarnia, situated at the foot of Lake Huron, and the opposite end of the River St. Clair from Detroit, the Grand Trunk Road is intended to take up for the benefit of Canada a trade which in 1856 amounted to sixty millions sterling,—a trade which formerly went by Buffalo, and the withdrawal of which has caused the ruin of the Ontario and St. Lawrence lines of steamers already. In short, it is intended that the products of a large sweep of our western country, the undeveloped resources of the vast regions of British North America, and the European trade with Asia, shall pass over this road, with important Atlantic termini both on British and American soil. The plan seems to be very comprehensive and complete, and to possess topical advantages and relations that will make Canada a powerful competitor with America in the race of empire. It will make of Canada a new realm. The enthusiastic French writer to whom we have alluded, thinks that Sarnia will take the place of Buffalo, and Montreal that of New-York, "slotting out, commercially, both these places from the high position they now occupy as trading cities." This will not be, though doubtless both may be interfered with in their growth, and take new relations, one to the trade of the country—the other to that of the world. Now, does it not appear important to do something for our own Pacific project? Here is an urgency. The world wants and needs this road the British capitalists and the British Government have the land on which to build it, and a short and practicable route, with 884 miles of it completed. Can any one doubt that this immense enterprise will be pushed forward, when the stake played for is so great, and the facilities of the game are so apparent?

KANSAS.

Trial of Gen. Lane for the Murder of Jenkins—Evidence for the Defense.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

LAWRENCE, Friday Morning, June 18, 1858.

The counsel on the part of the prosecution stated that they would now rest the case, on condition that H. W. JENKINS can be recalled whenever the diagram is completed, for the purpose of proving by him that the places and potato thereon designated are correctly located. The request was granted them by the Court, with the understanding that the witness, when called, shall be subject to the same legal objections as could be made if he were produced now.

The evidence for the defence was then opened:

Edward Munroe, sworn—I know Mr. Green, who has been in the employ of Mr. Jenkins; I saw him shortly after Jenkins was shot, over to the house of Jenkins; Green then stated that they were all arrived at the time Jenkins was shot; that they went over around, and commenced cutting down the gate, and Lane came out and forbid their cutting it down, and told them if they came another step he would kill them; that Jenkins raised his axe, and turned round to the boys and told them to rush on to the d——d villain and kill him; that he (Henry) snapped his revolver twice, and the third time it went off—Lane's gun going of about the same time; that if his pistol had gone off the first time, Lane would not have shot Jenkins; I think Mr. Jenkins had the axe in his hand at the time he was shot; these statements were not made to me, but to a crowd.

Cross-examined.—I am an intimate friend of Gen. Lane; have talked with him but once about the transaction since it occurred; think there were but fifteen or twenty present who heard what I have stated from Green; I understood Green to say that Jenkins had the axe raised above his head at the time he was shot; I supposed it was to strike Lane; he said they were armed with Colt's revolvers and Sharpe's rifles; there was considerable excitement at the time in the crowd and against Lane; some were for hanging him; I heard Lane state the affair on the day it occurred, and again about one week afterwards.

T. J. Simmons, sworn—I know Mr. Green, the hired man of Mr. Jenkins; on the day of Mr. Jenkins' death, about one hour after the occurrence, Green came to my house for a bucket; I gave him one; at the same time asked him if Jenkins was dead; he said he was not; he went and got some water near my house, and was on his way back to Jenkins' house, when I joined him; I asked him who shot Gen. Lane; he said there were three shots fired at him, and he believed his took effect, and he said he could not be brought to shoot a man, for any other person in the world but Mr. Jenkins, adding if his pistol had gone off, Lane would not have killed Jenkins; he said they snapped their pistols, but they did not go off.

Cross-examined—I have a distinct knowledge of what was said; I was not at all excited, but went over for the purpose of learning; I asked him whose shot took effect; he said it was his, but did not say who fired the others; I have talked over the matter with General Lane some since the occurrence; Green said three shots were fired at Lane by his party; I am equally positive that Green said Jenkins was not dead, but I knew otherwise at the time; I had been there to the spot before and saw Jenkins; I was about the fourth person who arrived after he was removed to his house; this was before I had the conversation with Green; this was why I knew he was dead; I made no remark to Green when he said Jenkins was not dead.

Scroggs Stewart, sworn—I don't know that I ever saw Henry W. Jenkins until the day of the death of his uncle; he said on that occasion that his uncle, Mr. Green, and Mr. Dufer went over to Gen. Lane's, with himself, for water; said he carried an axe and Mr. Jenkins a rifle; when they came to the gate, he (Henry) commenced chopping it down, but his uncle, thinking he was not fast enough, took the axe and cut the gate down, and marched in with his axe in his hand; that is the substance of his narrative; he said all were armed but himself; he had an axe; did not understand how Dufer was armed.

Cross-examined—I am positive he said they were all armed, and that his uncle had the axe in his hand; this conversation was in presence of several gentlemen back of Mr. Jenkins' house; I cannot remember the names of but one, but think as many as five or six were present.

G. H. Emery, sworn—I know Henry W. Jenkins; a day or two after the death of his uncle I had a conversation with him about the affair; I asked him if he knew who fired the rifle; he said he did not; he said at the time it was fired he was holding his uncle's head, and the blood was gushing out—that his back was towards the one who fired at the time.

Adjourned to 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON.

A. J. McClough, sworn—I know H. W. Jenkins by sight; I heard him reply to questions put to him on day of the affray, near Lane's house; some one asked him if his uncle was armed; he said that he (Gaine Jenkins) loaded a pistol and put it in his pocket before he started; some one asked him if his uncle had the axe when he was shot; said he had; do not recollect of his saying all were armed.

Cross-examined—This was about three fourths of an hour after the affray; I do not know whether young Jenkins went over with the corpse to his uncle's house; I remember only one man in the crowd that heard these statements; I only remember Mr. Simmons; the body of Jenkins was gone when I arrived there; I asked no questions; I have talked with Lane directly about the affair, and have been at his house and heard him make statements about it; I cannot specify the number of times I have heard Lane make statements about the affair, but several times; I was an intimate friend of Lane; think the expression of Mr. Jenkins' face indicated passion; there was a scowl.

A. Y. Tatton, sworn—I know a man by sight called Green, who worked for Jenkins; on the day of the affray I heard a portion of the statements he made; he said he had been down to Lane's with Jenkins when he was shot; said there were four of them; said he did not know whether he had shot Lane or not—but he fired twice at him and snapped a cap; that he did not know whether he hit him or not; if he had not, he intended to; he hoped he had killed him; if he had not, he would do it; he would make it a dear job for him shooting Jenkins; I left then and went down to Lane's; he stated that when Lane fired he was walking backwards; I saw the body of Mr. Jenkins about half an hour after he was killed; saw an expression that appeared to be of a wild, ferocious countenance.

Cross-examined—I have heard Lane make statements several times since the murder in reference to it; don't remember who was present when I heard Green make these statements, probably twenty or upwards were there; they were addressed to the crowd; saw Mr. McClough and Mr. Munroe, but don't remember the rest; these two are not particular acquaintances of mine.

Direct resumed—Green was making these statements when I went up and when I left, and I neither went there nor left with Mr. Munroe or Mr. McClough.

James F. Walker, sworn—I know both Gen. Lane and Gaine Jenkins, deceased; have heard Mr. Jenkins threaten Lane; during the progress of the land trial, at Lecompton, some four weeks ago, I heard, in front of Coltsmeier's store, in Lawrence, Jenkins state, that if Lane got the claim at the trial, he should never occupy it; this was while he was conversing about the right to the claim; he also said that as soon as the trial was over he should put Lane out of the house; have heard him say at other times that he ought to kill Lane; I occupied what is called the Chapman house, last Winter; there was not an abundance of water for all that came there to the well; a large number came there, and at four different times I stopped the neighbors from getting it; I stopped Mr. Jenkins with the rest, or his family; don't remember that Mr. Jenkins ever came himself, but his hands used to get the water; I never heard him, say he would kill Lane; I rented the house of Gen. Lane, and he kept his furniture and books there, and boarded there when in town; there was a picket fence around the house and well, and the fence on the back side was the line fence between this inclosure and Jenkins' field.

Cross-examined.—Q.—Did you not, in the office of Safford & Wood, say that you rented this house of S. N. Wood, and that General Lane claimed it,—the title being in dispute, you got the rent all Winter for nothing?

A.—No, Sir; I said S. N. Wood had asked me several times for rent, but that I should pay rent to the man I rented of—that was Lane—and I did pay to Lane; I got the key to the house of the man that moved out when I moved in; the man who succeeded me in renting was Mr. Nichols, who also hired the house of Lane; I heard them talking of the price, and understood Nichols was to pay twelve dollars per month; he moved in when I moved out, and remained until he moved *away for the family of Gen*eral Lane; Lane was there when Nichols put his things in the house; Nichols left the house but a few weeks ago.

Direct resumed—I communicated the threats Mr. Jenkins made to Lane the next day after they were uttered.

R. F. Nichols, sworn—I have occupied the house known as the Chapman House, and now occupied by General Lane; went in the 24th of July and left the 24th of May last; General Lane gave me possession, and I paid rent to him; Lane boarded with me when he was in town; he had a large quantity of books, his bed and other furniture in the house when I went there; before I left, Lane's family came into the house; have heard Gaine Jenkins threaten Lane; on the 25th of March last Jenkins came riding up on the back side of the lot and said: "Nichols, if you prove true to me, you will lose nothing by it" he then said: "If I catch Jim Lane on this claim, I will take him by the cuff of the neck and put him off;" about one week before I left he said again: "I want you to get Lane out before you leave." I told him I could not do it, and had no right to do it; Jenkins appeared quite angry, and said: "If you go off and leave him there, I will have him off from that claim dead or alive;" I communicated these threats to General Lane, but did not tell him of the last one until since the murder of Jenkins. Adjourned to 8 A. M. to-morrow.

Governor DENVER and party arrived last night from the south. He reports a very distracted state of society, but hopes he has aided in the establishment of peace by counseling all Pro-Slavery County Officers to resign, and he has appointed good Free-State men in their stead. He found MONTGOMERY to be a man and not a fiend. The whole people nearly to three counties sustain him. RANDOLPH.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Majority and Minority Reports on Swill-Milk.

The Board of Health met yesterday afternoon, Mayor TIEMANN in the Chair.

A resolution was offered by Councilman EARLY, to the effect that, as the keeping of swine in the City in large numbers is a nuisance, the City Inspector be authorized to remove all swine congregated in larger numbers than four on a single lot of ground. The resolution was adopted.

The Committee to whom was referred the subject of the propriety of the appointment of an Inspector of Meats, with Assistants, reported a resolution favoring the appointment of six Inspectors, at a salary of $2 50 per day, by the Board of Aldermen, in accordance with an opinion of the Corporation Counsel attached to the report. After a long debate the whole subject was laid on the table.

The following reports from the Swill-Milk Committee were then presented:

THE MAJORITY REPORT ON SWILL-MILK.

The majority of the Special Committee of the Board of Health, to whom was referred the following resolution:

Resolved, That there be appointed a Select Committee of five members of this Board, for the purpose of investigating, so far as may be practicable to do so, the character and condition of the sources from which cows' milk is derived for the purpose of sale in this City, and that they report the result of their investigations to this Board, together with such ordinance or ordinances regulating the stabling of cows and the sale of milk that they may deem necessary, respectfully

REPORT:

That they entered upon the duty assigned them with the full conviction that it was an important and a responsible one, and hence they have given the subject a most patient and thorough investigation, and made every possible endeavor to arrive at the facts in the case.

The principal establishments for the keeping of cows in New-York, and from which the greater portion of the swill-milk that is used in this City is derived, are the distillery stables owned by Bradish Johnson, and situated on the block of ground bounded by Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets and Tenth and Eleventh avenues, and those owned by Mr. Moore, located between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets and Tenth and Eleventh avenues.

Your Committee commenced the prosecution of their labors by making a minute personal examination of those premises, and of the cows contained in them, for the purpose of ascertaining the manner in which the stables were constructed, the mode and extent of their ventilation and their sanitary condition generally; and also, the healthy or unhealthy state of the animals.

On the occasion of this visit they procured specimens of milk, which they saw milked from various cows in the stables, and also a specimen of the swill or distillery slops which constitutes the principal article of the nourishment of the animals. These were delivered personally by members of the Committee to Drs. James R. Chilton and R. Ogden Doremus, two eminent chemists in this City, with whom arrangements were effected to make a thorough and complete analysis of specimens of milk and swill.

On subsequent occasions one of the Committee (Mr. TUCKER) presented several of the specimens of milk from those stables, and so as to avoid any mistake in the matter, he saw it milked from the cows, and delivered it to the chemists in person. In order to contrast the swill-milk with that derived from a cow fed on dry feed, your Committee procured some milk which was taken from a cow kept by JAMES BUTLER, Esq., on his premises at the corner of Fourth-avenue and Thirty-eighth street in this City, for his own private use, which milk was given to the chemists by a responsible party.

Your Committee then held six public meetings, in order to afford an ample opportunity for parties interested on either side of the question to be heard, and to collect all the evidence and information which they could obtain in relation to the matter.

With respect to the representations made by FRANK LESLIE in his Illustrated Newspaper, regarding the unhealthy condition of the swill-stables and the cows kept in them, and the poisonous properties of the milk derived from such sources—and which statements were sustained by the press and believed by the public generally—your Committee are convinced that any opinion which we might give would prove altogether unsatisfactory to the Board of Health and the public. Hence they deem it unnecessary to enter into a lengthy exposition of their investigations, but conclude to submit in detail a verbatim short-hand report of all the testimony elicited before them, together with several analyses of the milk and the swill made by the chemists, (all of which are hereto appended,) so that every person may judge for themselves, and the Board be enabled to take such action in the matter as it may deem most advisable.

Your Committee would state, however, that in their examination of the stables, a marked inefficiency of ventilation was observed, especially in those stables constructed of wood. The brick buildings, being of more modern construction, contained many improvements in this respect over the old wooden stables. In every instance they found that the stalls allotted to each cow were much too small, being only about three feet in width, which certainly is not a sufficient space to give ample room to the animals.

The stables, when the Committee visited them, were in as cleanly condition as it was possible for such places to be in. With very few exceptions the cows were found to be in good condition and a healthy state. A few sores were observed upon the joints of their legs, caused, we believe, by their lying down upon the wet planks, but no ulcers were found upon their bodies. Sores or wounds were observed upon the tails of several of them, just above the bush of the tail. Your Committee were informed that these sores were produced by the process of inoculation, which is practiced extensively in order to prevent the contraction of a disease that is said to prevail epidemically among the cows in this City and in the surrounding country.

This inoculation consists of the insertion in the tails of the living animals, as the virus, matter from the lungs of a cow which has died of the disease. The cows are inoculated when first brought into the stables, and it generally requires two or three weeks for the sore to heal, and sometimes it is thought better to cut off the tail. This is one of the reasons why short-tailed cows were found in the stables.

Notwithstanding the general good condition of the cows in those stables taken in a mass, your Committee are satisfied that by permitting a sufficient number of ventilators in the ceilings and roofs of the buildings, and arranging the stalls so that each animal would have a space of at least five feet in the clear, it would add most materially to the cleanliness of the stables, the purity of the air in them, and consequently to the comfort, health and improved general condition of the cows.

As to the deleterious and poisonous qualities of swill-milk, from the use of which it has been repeatedly asserted that from eight to ten thousand children in this City sicken or die annually, your Committee would state that all the testimony which they have been able to obtain upon that point, fails to demonstrate a single instance where a child or an adult has sickened or died from the effects produced by drinking milk, where the milk was traced directly to the swill stables, by the witnesses testifying to the fact; and the chemical analysis establishes the fact that there are no deleterious or poisonous substances, either in the milk secreted by these swill-fed cows or in the swill upon which they are fed.

Your Committee received the formal complaint of the City Inspector, against these cow stables, when the investigations were nearly completed. They do not deem it necessary for them to recommend any action in relation to the subject referred to them, except the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the proprietors of the cow-stables situated between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets and Tenth and Eleventh avenues, be and they are hereby directed to have said stables so altered as to give as perfect a system of ventilation through the ceiling and roofs, and otherwise, as may be appointed by the City Inspector. Also, that the proprietors of said stables be and they are hereby directed to have the stables in them so arranged as to give each cow a space of not less than five feet in the clear, the same to be done forthwith under the direction and to the satisfaction of the City Inspector.

Resolved, That the City Inspector be and is hereby instructed to cause the above resolution to be carried into effect in relation to the above mentioned stables, and all other similar cow-stables in the City and County of New-York.

The following is the result of the chemical and microscopic analysis:

NEW-YORK, June 22, 1858.

To Aldermen Tuomey, Tucker, Reed and others, Committee:

GENTLEMEN: Having been appointed by you to analyze various samples of milk and "distillery *swill," we beg leave respectfully to report the fol*lowing as the results of our chemical and microscopical investigations:

SAMPLE No. I—Received from the Committee May 29, (represented as being the "strippings" of a cow,) *was small in quantity, and represented the appear*ance of ordinary cream.

It gave slightly alkaline reactions—the specific gravity at the temperature of 60° Fahr., was 10.26, and it contained in the hundred parts:

Water	65.39	Sugar	1.98
Butter	22.37	Saline ingredients	1.16
Casein	9.10	Total	100.00

No. II—Received from the Committee, May 27 and 29, was slightly acid—the specific gravity was 10.34. It yielded:

Water	85.92	Sugar	3.10
Butter	2.64	Saline matters	.74
Casein	6.34	Total	100.00

No. III—Received May 27 and May 29, was slightly alkaline. Specific gravity 10.29, and contained of:

Water	85.47	Sugar	2.12
Butter	6.31	Saline matter	.55
Casein	6.47
Total			100.00

No. IV—Received *May 27 and May 29, was slight*ly acid. Specific gravity 10.32:

Water	85.60	Sugar	4.42
Butter	4.44	Saline matter	.54
Casein	5.20
Total			100.00

No. V—Received May 27 and 29, Was slightly alkaline. Specific gravity, 10.31:

Water	87.05	Sugar	1.80
Butter	2.21	Saline matter	.72
Casein	8.22	Total	100.00

At the suggestion of your Committee we obtained specimens of milk from the cow-stables corner of Sixteenth street and Tenth avenue, June 2. The following is the average of two analyses. They were slightly alkaline. Average specific gravity, 10.32, and yielded of

Water	85.80	Sugar	1.77
Butter	4.42	Saline matter	.80
Casein	7.99	Total	100.00

Four analyses were made of the mixture of milk received from the Committee, June 4 and 6, (stated to have been obtained from five cows,) of which we give the average result:

They were slightly alkaline—had an average specific gravity 10.30, and contained:

Water	85.61	Sugar	2.54
Butter	3.96	Saline matter	0.96
Casein	6.39	Total	100.00

Two analyses were made of the milk furnished by the Committee, June 1 and 11, from a cow belonging to Mr. JAMES SUTHER (Dept corner of Fourth-avenue and Thirty-eighth street. The following is the average:

They were slightly alkaline—specific gravity 10.32 and contained:

Water	85.26	Sugar	3.97
Butter	4.40	Saline matter	0.96
Casein	5.71	Total	100.00

Two analyses were made of the salts obtained by incinerating a large quantity of milk from Nos. 2, 3 and 4 of May 27, and from the five cows of June 4, for the purpose of determining the proportion of the different saline ingredients.

100 parts of the saline matter contained in the milk marked Nos. 2, 3 and 4, consisted of

Phosphate of lime and phosphate of magnesia	16.67
Phosphate of peroxide of iron	1.00
Chloride of potassium	22.00
Chloride of Sodium	4.73
Soda	7.60
Total	100.00

100 parts of the salts from the milk of the five cows contained

Phosphate of lime	16.9
Phosphate of magnesia	9.1
Chloride of potassium	20.3
Phosphate of Peroxide of iron	1.2
Chloride of Sodium	4.3
Soda	7.2
Total	100.00

The "Distillery swill" water, we obtained fresh from the large reservoirs at the cow-stables, corner of Sixteenth-street and Tenth-avenue, gave on analysis:

Water	92.600
Gliy matter	.900
Sugar	.561
Acetic Acid	.349
Starch and Dextrine	.431
Phosphate of Lime, Phosphate of Magnesia,	.156
Phosphate of Iron, Chlorides of Potassium and Sodium, Sulonates of Potassa and Soda,	.916
Gluten and other nitrogenized substance, Woody fibre, from the hulls of the grains,	4.490
Total amount of Nitrogen obtained from 100 parts of the swill, 0.1161	100.000

The samples of milk were each separately examined and tested with chemical reagents, under the microscope—they were found to exhibit the usual appearances and reactions of milk under such circumstances. Neither pus, blood, or abnormal substance were discovered.

In order that the results of these examinations may be more readily compared, we have arranged them in a tabular form—and in accordance with the wishes of your Committee, have appended a few analyses of milk, by acknowledged European authorities.

BILL OF LADING—OWNER'S RISK STOWAGE.

Christopher R. Robert et al. vs. Jose A. Mora et al.—This is an action of affreightment by the owners of the bark Alcoma to recover $2,026 for transporting a cargo of sugar and molasses from Cardenas to the port of New-York on board the bark, consigned by Posse, Rodriguez & Co., of Cardenas, to the respondents, under a charter party between the said consignees and the master of said bark, and a bill of lading executed by the said master bearing date March 22, 1857. The bill of lading was in the usual form and subscribed with the reservation, weight and contents unknown.

The respondents contest the demand on the allegations that portions of the cargo were not taken under deck according to the stipulations of the charter party, and that other portions were improperly stowed and not properly dunnaged; that a large part of the cargo was lost and a large part was not delivered in the consignees in the good order and condition in which it was taken on board.

The Court found that the contract on the part of the owner was adequately fulfilled; that the cargo was carried under deck according to agreement; that the stowage was proper and usual and the dunnage proper and safe, and that the libelants were not responsible for the alleged deterioration in the cargo as [illegible]

The Court found that the libelants recover [illegible] upon a bill of lading by which the ship agreed on departing to deliver to the libelants in New-York 300 cases containing cassia lignea. The bill of lading was signed by the master, with the reservation of "weight, measure and contents, unknown, and not responsible for breakage, leakage, damage (and particularly stowage." The libelants claimed damages because 267 of the cases were delivered in bad order and broken.

Held by the Court—That as the libelants made advances upon the bill of lading with notice of the reservation; and the goods having been delivered in apparent good order, and the reservation was proper, and the cargo having been well and carefully stowed, there is no cause of action established against the ship.

Libel dismissed with costs.

For libelants, Mr. Lovell; for claimants, Mr. Barrington.

INDICTMENT.

The Grand Jury brought in an indictment against William Fisher for forging a draft upon the Post Office Department for $5,000. The particulars were given in the report of his examination before the Commissioner. The Grand Jury were then discharged for the term.

COUNTERFEITING.

Francis Stanley was then put on trial, charged with counterfeiting quarter dollars. Oscar Van Dyke was put on the stand and testified that, becoming acquainted with Stanley, he was invited by him to his house, and that Stanley then told him he was engaged in making counterfeit coin, and proposed to him to be partner with him; showed him the process of manufacture, and gave him some of the coin. The witness, being somewhat in liquor, passed two of the counterfeits, and was arrested for it, whereupon he told the officers where he got them. Stanley's house was searched, but nothing found in any way bearing upon the manufacture, unless a pail of horse manure and some plaster of paris and a toothbrush were connected with it.

The District Attorney's witnesses, by which he expected to prove that the quarters which Van Dyke passed were counterfeit, were absent from Court.

Whereupon Mr. Spencer, who appeared for the prisoner, requested the Court to instruct the Jury that they must acquit the prisoner, as there were no counterfeited coin produced, and therefore no actual counterfeiting was shown.

The Court accordingly gave that instruction, and the defendant was discharged.

The witness Vandyke was also discharged, on his own recognizance.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term.

Before the Hon. Justice Clerke.

THE DUDLEY OBSERVATORY.

Controversy Between the Trustees and the Director, Dr. Gould.

Statement of Dr. Gould—Remarks of T. W. Olcott, Esq.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, June 28.

It is known to the readers of the TIMES that there has existed for some time past an unfortunate difference between the Trustees of the Dudley Observatory here, and Dr. Gould, the Director, and [illegible] to show extract of letter, with [illegible] of the Coast Survey. In 1856, [illegible] the Director, Dr. Gould, [illegible] of the Coast Survey, proposed, on [illegible] to the Trustees, that if means could be raised to purchase certain instruments for the Observatory, the Coast Survey would provide others, and that the whole should have the hearty co-operation of Professors Peirce and Gould and the aid of Dr. Peirce. This was accepted; $14,000 was raised, and Dr. Gould, after a voyage to Europe, contracted for a Heliometer with Mr. Spencer, of Canastota. Dr. Gould and Mr. Gauss afterwards went to Europe again and purchased instruments, some of which were broken on the way home. Mr. Olcott accused Dr. Gould of gross mismanagement of the funds, and general impracticability of character and conduct. He undertook useless and extensive alterations in the buildings, and wasted large sums of money without any useful result. Nearly $1,200 was lost by his useless experiments upon clocks. Up to the close of 1857 he had the entire confidence of the Trustees, and everything was done in accordance with his directions. He procured plans for additional buildings which would have cost $100,000,—and yet, during all these schemes for increasing the expenses of this institution he was a candidate for a Professorship in another.

But it was not until the Trustees had been induced by Dr. Gould to dismiss Dr. Peirce, a most valuable and accomplished astronomer, that his real hostility to the Observatory was suspected. At the meeting when this action took place, Dr. Gould disclaimed all responsibility for everything that had been done, and alleged that he had received no aid or support from the Trustees. And from this time he became openly and avowedly hostile to the institution. He has complained in letters that he had been compelled to pay from his own pocket the necessary expenses of the Observatory,—statements which he must have known to be utterly untrue. He has treated the Trustees with discourtesy whenever they have visited the institution. He has furthermore neglected his duties. The Corning clock which Dr. Gould was directed to contract for in 1855, and which was to have been furnished forthwith, for some unaccountable reason has not arrived.

The beautiful clock generously given by the Messrs. Bond, New-York, was rejected by Dr. Gould, and yet he has in the Observatory and dwelling eleven clocks, useful only as toys for the entertainment of his juvenile companions and visitors. Although the splendid transit instrument has been on hand for twenty months, there has been made no attempt to mount it. The magnificent circle has been on hand since October last, and nothing done with it. Why, asks Mr. Olcott, this studied delay? Why have these costly and unequaled instruments been suffered to lie in cases, when every astronomer, conscious of his own powers, would pant for the unfolding glories they are expected to reveal? The reason lies, says Mr. Olcott, in a discreet unwillingness on the part of Dr. Gould to test his skill as a practical astronomer.

Mr. Olcott referred to several instances in which Dr. Gould had spoken disparagingly and unruly of the Trustees, both in conversation and in letters, and also charges him with devoting a large portion of his time to deriving an income from determinations of the longitude. Mr. O. states, in conclusion, that the Trustees of this Institution aimed at securing for it a national character, and as a means to this end, to cooperate in harmonious action with the Observatories at Washington, Cambridge, Cincinnati and Ann Arbor; but we find, he adds, that Dr. Gould's personal relations with Mitchell, with Maury, with Bond, and with Bayard, names illustrious in astronomical science, are such as to preclude the hope of concert and cooperation with them. Cambridge is the original point from whence the longitude of all other places in the country has been determined, but instead of asking the aid of the Cambridge Observatory, equipped and in readiness for service, Dr. Gould takes a point in New-York, determined by Cambridge observatory, and which increases by one remove the chances of error, if not the cost of the work; and cannot stoop so low as to acknowledge the authority of that old and respected institution.

In spite of all these discouragements, Mr. Olcott represented the institution as being in a prosperous condition. It has a library of 1,100 valuable works,—the Observatory buildings and instruments worth $45,000, the Calculating engine worth $5,000, a dwelling-house worth $10,000, and the whole of Mrs. Dudley's gift, which is yet untouched and amounts to $50,000. Mr. Olcott disavowed any feelings of personal hostility towards Dr. Gould, and said he had been actuated solely by a sense of duty in this exposure.

After his paper was read Judge Harris offered the resolutions you have already published and they were adopted. Dr. Gould's connection with the Observatory is thus ended,—but of course he will address the public in reply to these accusations.

The Regatta—Award of the Prizes.

The time for awarding the prizes to the winning yachts, was 10 o'clock, yesterday morning. The Minnie was awarded the first prize, for sloops, and the Silvie the first prize for schooners.

The sum made up by the regular entries was about $400, and an equal amount was subscribed by outsiders. It has been equally divided between them.

The Rebecca was ruled out for deviating from the course, not alone in passing through Plumb Island passage, but for passing the wrong side of other defined boundaries, as well as for lowering a boat contrary to the rules.

THE LATE CASHIER OF THE BRIDGEPORT BANK DROWNED AT YONKERS.—Mr. ABEL, till recently Cashier of the Bridgeport Bank, was drowned at 8¼ o'clock Sunday evening, at Yonkers, while bathing in North River. He was taken with cramps immediately after plunging into the water, and sunk before assistance reached him. Nearly all night was spent in dragging the river in search of the body, but without effect. Mr. ABEL and his family were boarding temporarily at the Gatty House.

The Euclelan Society of the New-York University celebrated its anniversary, in the large chapel of the University, last evening. The Rev. H. S. CASPARIS delivered an oration on "Man," and PAUL BENJAMIN read a poem entitled "True Independency." Both were [illegible]

FROM CUBA AND THE GULF.

The American Cruisers—Where They Are, and What they are Doing—Further Details of News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Wednesday, June 23, 1858.

The greater part of the vessels of the Home Squadron have already reached our coasts, and are cruising diligently about the Gulf in search of the offending Britishers. The Wabash saw the Vice-Admiral in Jamaica, and received from him every assurance of the speedy cessation of further visits from Her Majesty's cruisers, accompanied with the positive denial of said cruisers having received orders to search any American vessels. He further stated that the commanders of the Jasper, Buzzard and Styx would be held to a strict account of their doings. With this information the Wabash put to sea again, and has since been cruising on the north side of the Island.

The Water Witch was last heard from at Sagua.

The Fulton, Dispatch and Arctic are cruising between Havana and Sagua la Grande.

The bark Sessica, of Philadelphia, was fired into by the Jasper, when about eight miles distant from Matanzas. The Jasper [illegible] but the Sessica having a fine breeze, was soon out of range. The Spanish Admiral says that though the offending vessel sailed under Spanish colors, it could not possibly have been one of the vessels under his command, as the only one answering at all to the description given by the Captain of the Louisa was in port at the time. Captain HAZEZEIN had taken charge of the matter, and intends to sift it to the bottom.

The Arctic passed the Styx bearing down on her under Spanish colors. When she passed, she hauled them down, and ran up the English flag. This was merely a piece of impertinence on the part of the English commander.

The last news from the States, manifesting as it does the firm determination on the part of the American people to resist the right of search, have brought down the pride of our English and Scotch residents to the proper level. They look sheepish in spite of themselves. The Spanish barbers declare that they will have to charge them an extra peseta for shaving, their faces have grown so long.

It is rumored that General CONCHA is in receipt of private advices from Spain, informing him that the Home Government have determined on sending out his successor as soon as possible. In anticipation of such an event he has hurried on to completion the near wharf, on the Alameda de Caula, which is to bear his name. The coasters have already been sent there to discharge and load, and the whole face of things in this hitherto quiet ward has suddenly changed. The beautiful walk has given place to the busy throng of commerce, and the sober Creoles who were wont to make it their evening promenade will have to go elsewhere for fresh air and quiet chat. It is one of the finest wharves in the world, provided with neat iron sheds for the protection of the goods waiting shipment from our drenching Summer showers, and cost the Government $200,000, including the paving of the street with Boston granite. It was CONCHA's intention to build a fine pier for the many steamers that touch at this place, but this part of the plan will be left to his successor, if he has energy enough.

Another of his important acts is the establishment of a new system for the capture of highway robbers which I recommend to the consideration of Mayor TIEMANN. It is called the Somaten, and may be compared to a general rising of the country en masse for the capture of offenders. Whenever a crime is committed, notice is to be immediately given thereof, and all the male inhabitants of the district, including the troops, are to assemble and assist in the capture of the robbers. The church and plantation bells are to be rung, and signal guns fired to govern the directions of the parties. The planters and country people do not seem to relish the new system at all, and from a pretty intimate knowledge of the Guajiros and localities of the Island, I would venture to assert that it will not prove effective in clearing the country of the robbers and assassins that infest it. If the Government demoralises the people by permitting them to fight cocks, and gamble in the Royal Lottery, it cannot expect anything else for a result.

One of the latest feats of these robbers was the seizure of the Lieutenant-Governor of San Antonio, near his own residence, and completely stripping him of everything valuable. He was returning with his lady from a visit a short distance in the country, when his carriage was stopped and he himself tied like a negro to the nearest palm tree. They took from him valuables and part of his clothing, and relieved his wife of her trinkets, and when they took leave of him told him never to take arms with him when he went out with his lady, unless he was courageous enough to use them. CONCHA immediately removed him for his cowardly conduct, but though every effort has been made to capture the robbers, they are still at large. CONCHA probably thinks the Somaten will catch them.

The health of the city, notwithstanding the incessant rains, is quite good. In Matanzas the yellow fever is reported to be very fatal.

Cruise of the Steamer Arctic.

U. S. STEAMER ARCTIC,
KEY WEST, Fla., Monday, June 21, 1858.

After communicating with the shore at Havana on the 18th, we got under way for Matanzas, having learned that a Spanish war schooner had fired into the Louisa off that port, and that the Fulton and Water Witch were then upon the same errand, viz., to inquire into the matter. We arrived there on the morning of the 17th, and found that it was a false alarm, and that the Water Witch had left nine days before and the Fulton three days before. We then came back to Havana and fell in with the Fulton and Wabash off the Moro on the morning of the 18th.

At daylight in the morning of the 16th we made out a large paddle steamer, which stood for us as soon as she made us out. As she drew near we hoisted our ensign and she the Spanish colors. We went to quarters and awaited her approach in breathless silence, for although she had Spanish colors up, she looked every inch an Englishman. When about a quarter of a mile off she hauled up and showed us her broadside, and we thought certainly we should receive a shot. However, after surveying us from the tops of her wheel-houses for a few moments, she up with her helm and showed us her heels very much to our disgust.

On our arrival at Matanzas we learned that this vessel was the notorious Styx, and that she had gone into Havana when she left us. She appeared to be a very fine vessel, but little smaller than the Savannah, and if we had engaged could have made short work of us. Indeed, if it is true that some of our Senators wish the Styx to be captured and brought into one of our ports, it may be to their edification to be informed that the Wabash is the only vessel in these waters which could do it, and that even the little gun-boat Jasper could capture three vessels like the Arctic at once with the greatest ease. It is said in fact that the English are very much disgusted to think that vessels of this class should be sent by our Government to teach them better manners.

The Wabash, after keeping the Fulton and this vessel upon her quarters off the Moro all day Friday, like two chickens under the wings of an old hen, started off in the evening for this place for coal with us in tow.

The gun-boat Jasper was in here two weeks ago looking for the Styx, with orders for her to repair to Jamaica and give a strict account of her proceedings against our vessels. I think it will result that the accounts given of her visits to American ships have been very much exaggerated, but that she has been very active in putting in practice "the right of visit," appears very probable from the manner in which she stood for us. Hoisting Spanish colors, too, has a suspicious look. It is very probable that the rich prize by the Jasper of a slave bark taken in March last, with a large amount of gold on board, has been too strong an incentive for the English to stand upon much ceremony.

The Styx was in here on the 25th ult., boarded eight or ten vessels on her way in and remained a week. It was then that her commander saw, for the first time, our Northern papers, and learned, so he says, the manner in which his officers had conducted themselves when boarding our ships. He says he has no doubt but they will dismiss him from the service, not so much for having done what he has, but because it has created such an excitement in our country. The people have treated him very coolly, only one gentleman besides the English Consul, having anything to say to him, while under ordinary circumstances this is one of the most hospitable places in the world to all strangers.

This place is rapidly improving, and if Congress would give it some attention and spend a little money in the right direction, it could be made the really most important naval station we have. Indeed, if our ships could find here all they require, we could get along very well without Cuba.

We go up to sea to-day at noon, and will repair to our cruising ground—the north side of Cuba—and although it is considered here that there is no further occasion for our remaining longer upon the station, we cannot leave until we get orders from Washington.

Commodore BERRIER, the English Naval commander, at Port Royal, Jamaica, told the Rear-Admiral LAVALLETTE, that his officers of those steamers had no orders whatever with regard to boarding our vessels, and that he had already sent for them to give an account of themselves, but that his Government would never relinquish the right to board our vessels to and board them.

The Water Witch arrived here yesterday morning for coal. The Colorado is expected here this week.

Arrival of the Empire City.

M. FELIX BELLY AND T. F. MEAGHER AMONG THE PASSENGERS—COMMERCIAL NEWS.

The United States mail steamship Empire City, S. P. GRIFFIN, Esq. commanding, arrived this morning from New-Orleans and Havana. Her dates are from New-Orleans the 20th inst., and Havana the 23d.

The Granada, from Aspinwall, delivered her mails duly to the Empire City at Havana.

Outside the harbor, when leaving, the Empire City exchanged salutations with the Arctic, Capt. HAZEZEIN, cruising off the port.

There is the usual dearth of news from Havana. Freights from Europe are slightly improved; for the United States a trifling decline is noted. Exchange—London, 12 to 12½ P.; New-York and Northern Ports, ¾ to 1 for P.; New-Orleans, 4 to 5¼ do.

Among the passengers from Havana are T. F. MEAGHER, Esq., Sub Inspector General PATT, and the noted M. FELIX BELLY, who has been a resident in Central America. The two Government officers have spent the past summer in Central America, whence they bring interesting sketches, documents, ancient Indian relics, and specimens of natural history, &c., &c.

M. BELLY, it is said, comes to New-York with the intention of making an exposé of the doings of North Americans in Central America for the last twenty-five or thirty years. His attacks, it is rumored, will be especially directed against the American envoy, consuls, commercial agents, and roving commissioners of every description. He claims to have substantiatory documents.

The names of Col. FRANZ ANSSEN and Col. BAUMO von NATHMIR, officers of Gen. WALKER, also appear in the list from New-Orleans.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The overpowering heat, the German Festival, and other things interfered with Signor ARONI's benefit last night. The house was poorly attended, the performance very excellent.

It is now announced that Wednesday will be the last appearance of all the artists. All the miscellaneous benefits are postponed sine die, and with this one performance the season comes to an end.

MR. MOSS' BENEFIT.—The benefit to this gentleman comes off to-day and night, at the Academy of Music. A programme of unusual attractiveness has been prepared for the occasion, and those who patronize the entertainment will certainly have their money's worth. The particulars will be found in another column. Afternoon performance commences at 1½, with the 4th act of "The Merchant of Venice" (Mr. E. L. DAVENPORT and Miss CLIFTON in the principal parts.) Bryant's Minstrels follow; then the musical burlesque of the "Swedish Nightingale (Mr. A. H. DAVENPORT and Miss MARY SHAW in the principal parts;) and then the farce of the "Rough Diamond." In the evening at 7½, an act of "The Americans in Paris" will be given, (with LESTER, BLAKE, DAVENPORT, Mrs. ALLEN, and Miss MARY GARNON;) then a grand pas by Mlle. CHRISTINE, and a Medley by la petite EMMELINE; then the tragedy of "Medea" (with MATILDA HERON, Mrs. ALLEN, Mr. ALLEN, and others;) then a musical intermezzo in which Signor ARONI, Signor GASPARONI, Dr. GUILMETTE, and others sing; then the farce of "An Unwarrantable Intrusion," (with Mr. JOHN BROUGHAM and Mr. WHITING;) and lastly, an Irish Jig by la petite ALICE, and La Madrelienne by Mlle. CHRISTINE. This is surely enough for the money.

The Cunningham Case—The Murder of Paudeen Regarded as a Public Blessing.

NEW-YORK, Friday, June 25, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your leader upon the Cunningham homicide this morning, in connection with the remarks of "A Peaceable Man," is so extraordinary that I would beg leave to again direct your attention to the consideration of the subject.

Now, as to the course of the trial of CUNNINGHAM we know nothing. We have not the pleasure of the acquaintance of a single member of the bar engaged in that case; they may be, and doubtless are, men of standing in the profession. We did not read the evidence adduced, (for we are not fascinated with that kind of literature.) The character of "PAUDEEN," however, was as well known in this community as that of HORACE GREELEY or JAMES GORDON BENNETT. He carried in his face the best possible evidence of the termination and consequence of "a rough and tumble quarrel," received by him at the teeth of another ruffian in "a licking" inflicted some years ago. He himself, in "a licking" he gave a man of the same stamp, had committed unnecessarily and wantonly a felony—to wit, had bitten off his nose, which in this State is declared by statute a felony, and is punished as mayhem, although not mayhem at Common law. Upon the same basis stand some other personal disfigurements and injuries. The following is the language of the revised statutes:

Fourth edition, Vol. 1, p. 856, (sec. 27.) "Every person who, from premeditated design, evinced from lying in wait for a purpose, or in any other manner, or with intention to kill or commit any felony, shall

1. Cut out or disable the tongue; or
2. Put out an eye; or
3. Slit the lip, or nose or destroy the nose; or
4. Cut or disable any limb or member of another, shall be imprisoned in a State Prison for such term as the Court shall prescribe, not less than seven years."

Now, at common law, castration was not mayhem, and was not punishable at all criminally as such, neither was any personal injury, save it affected a man so as to disable him from defence in a fight.

Now, the entire antecedents of Paudeen were such as to induce any man to believe that he would either gouge out his eyes, or bite off his nose, and if these are not personal injuries, what under the sun are they? That there was "a reasonable ground to apprehend" this catastrophe in the case of CUNNINGHAM—who knew well the character of Paudeen—none but a natural-born fool can deny.

But irrespective of the law you quote, CUNNINGHAM was perfectly justifiable in killing Paudeen. He was attacked, and whether he had reasonable ground to suppose that his nose would be bitten off or not, he acted as every American, or any one who has resided any time in this country, would act.

The old common-law doctrine that a man has got to run even when he fears the intent of his adversary is to kill him, until he is brought up against a stone wall so high that he can't jump over it, is nonsense, and has long ceased to be regarded as law in the United States. Running would, in such a case where firearms were used, precipitate the event that he wished to avoid. If a man shoots at you, courage is discretion, and you should close instantly with him and prevent his re-cocking his weapon, as illustrated in the case of Secretary BROWN, in his rencontre with the clerk this Winter in the Patent Office. The person of a man in this country is held as sacred, and the man who violates it, does so at the risk of his life. Judge MCCLURG, of Pittsburg, in a recent case, where a man shot another who attempted to cowhide him, but did not kill him, in the prosecution for the intent to kill, used the following language to the Jury:

"That man who uses a cowhide on the shoulders of another in public, ought to expect to be laid dead at his feet. The disgrace of submitting to such outrage calmly, sneakingly, or quietly, is what no man not an ingrained coward can do; what human nature in this country, at least, cannot, and, it is to be hoped, never will."

Now this is recognized as law by public opinion and common sense. The day indeed will be a sad one for Americans, when they become so mean-spirited as to intrust their satisfaction, in such instances, to the "law's delay," instead of laying low the assailant at the instant of the assault. This public commonsense law is not peculiar to Western Pennsylvania, but predominates here in this goodly City of New-York, and everywhere, that men are not cowards and womanish. Moreover, the very passage of the act you quote is a recognition of this fact respecting public opinion. The Legislature only urges the English rule of justifiable homicide, accommodating it to a more honorable and high-minded people, neither women, nor cowards, nor slaves, nor cotton-spinners, nor shop-keepers, by nature, but men of courage, understanding their rights and determined upon self-defence.

Now, if homicide is justifiable in the instances recognized by the statute you quote, is it not much more justifiable in cases wherein through neglect the Legislature is silent? but which the universal voice of mankind—and especially American man and womankind—has pronounced much more flagrant and terrible? If the loss of your nose warrants you to kill the man who attempts to bite it off—will not the loss of your daughter's, or mother's, or sister's honor warrant equally your bathing your arms to the elbow in the blood of him who attempts to assail them? What is wealth and life worth without honor? The loss of honor in a woman is worse than death, and shall those to whom she naturally looks for protection, merely "bite their thumbs at him," who by word or act, attempts to rob them of the only bond to life?

The man who violates a woman, that woman has a right to compel her account make relative to your out his very heart's blood. This is a rule that has public opinion, and the man who fails in such cases of his duty the world throws him, and his acquaintance pass with a smile of pity.

"Killing is no murder," although murder is always a killing. Yours, &c., COMMON SENSE.

P. S.—With respect to the killing of PAUDEEN, if you will hold the purse and execute the trust, I will contribute $10 to purchase a fitting testimonial to CUNNINGHAM, for having acted the part of a public benefactor in ridding this community of an intolerable bully and pest.

Conviction and Sentence of Mrs. Sarah Littles.

On Saturday morning, the trial of Mrs. SARAH LITTLES, at Rochester, came to a close. It will be recollected that she was indicted for participating with her brother, IRA STROUT, already convicted, in the murder of her husband, CHARLES W. LITTLES, on the 20th of December last. The case occupied a special Oyer and Terminer five days.

The Jury retired about 4½ o'clock on Friday afternoon, and were soon engaged in an animated discussion of the matter, with little prospect of coming to an immediate conclusion. As subsequent revelations in the Court developed, the Jury proceeded to try the prisoner upon a new issue—one not presented in the indictment or even hinted at during the whole trial, viz.: that of being accessory to the murder after the fact.

Soon after the Jury retired the Court took a recess, to come together at the ringing of the bell, if the jury were ready to come in. A hundred or more people remained in the Court-room, notwithstanding the intense heat, and dark, stormy weather, to hear the verdict announced. At 8:20 the Judges were notified that the Jury were ready to come in, when the following proceedings took place:

Clerk—Gentlemen of the Jury, answer to your names. (The Jury answered.) Have you agreed upon a verdict?

W. L. Burtis—We have not. At the request of the the Jury, your honor, I desire to make an inquiry—we wish instruction upon two points. If we find the prisoner accessory after the fact guilty of murder or homicide, under what degree of manslaughter does it fall in either case or both?

Judge Mason—There is no charge in the indictment of being accessory after the fact. That is so, is it not, District-Attorney?

Mr. Huson—There is no such count in the indictment.

Judge Mason—Gentlemen, you having nothing to do with the question of accessory after the fact—there is no evidence upon which to predicate such a charge—it is not an issue.

Burtis—We should like to be further informed as to the different degrees of manslaughter—we did not all understand what you read to the Court.

Judge Mason read the statute defining murder, and the four degrees of manslaughter.

Burtis—Are we to understand that the Jury, to agree, must bring a verdict of guilty, or not guilty of murder?

Judge Mason—If you find the prisoner guilty of murder, you will say so in your verdict—if you find her guilty of any degree of manslaughter, you will state what degree, and say nothing about murder.

Burtis—We understand your Honor.

Judge Mason—If there is any possibility of your coming to an agreement within a short time, we will hold the court open to receive your verdict.

Burtis—We will let you know in five minutes.

The Jury then retired, and in about ten minutes reported to the court that there was no prospect of an immediate agreement. The court then adjourned to 8½ o'clock this morning. The jury took the large court-room, and occupied it all night.

SIXTH DAY.

Saturday, June 26.—Precisely at half-past eight the court convened, and the jury came into court. It was understood that they had agreed upon a verdict, and there was some anxiety manifested by the numerous audience to know what it was.

THE VERDICT.

After the Clerk had called the roll, he said: Gentlemen of the Jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?

Mr. Fulton, Foreman—We have.

Clerk—Jury, look upon the prisoner—prisoner, look upon the Jury. What say you, gentlemen of the Jury, is the prisoner at the bar guilty or not guilty?

Foreman—Guilty of manslaughter in the second degree!

The announcement of the verdict caused no sensation in court, and was about what many expected. The prisoner was calm and did not appear to be disappointed by the result. Her friends were rather pleased than otherwise.

THE SENTENCE.

District-Attorney Huson, soon after the verdict was announced, rose and moved the Court that sentence be pronounced against Sarah Littles.

The Court inquired if the counsel for the prisoner had any objection to sentence being pronounced, and was answered in the negative.

Mrs. Littles then came forward to the Clerk's desk and took the preliminary oath, answering the usual questions as follows:

I am twenty years old; was born at Wilksbarre, Penn; I have a common school education—can read and write; I have had religious instruction in the episcopal Church.

Judge Mason—Sarah Littles, you have been indicted, tried and convicted by an impartial jury of your countrymen, of manslaughter in the second degree; have you anything to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced against you?

Prisoner—I have nothing to say, Sir.

Judge Mason—The sentence of the Court is, that you be confined in the female convict department of the State Prison at Sing Sing for the period of seven years!

And thus ended the trial of Sarah Littles.

The Rochester Union and Advertiser says:

"Mrs. LITTLES expressed her determination to go to prison, with a resolve to do her duty while there, and so demean herself as to inspire the confidence of friends, and with a hope that she may at some future time be pardoned, and have an opportunity to convince those who blame her that she can conduct herself as a good woman should. She will probably be taken to Sing Sing early next week."

IRA STROUT was sentenced to be hung on the 16th inst., but a stay has been obtained in his case, preparatory to an application for a new trial.

THE DICKENS DIFFICULTY.—A New-York correspondent of the Boston Atlas and Bee says:

"The scandalous reports about DICKENS and his family have excited much attention here—but the manly card of Mr. DICKENS, published in Household Words, relieves him from the imputation of infidelity. I was yesterday conversing with a gentleman well acquainted with the Dickens family, and he attributes the difference between the novelist and wife to diverse views they take in regard to the religious education of their daughters. Mr. DICKENS is a decided latitudinarian in his views, and generally attends the Unitarian Church, while Mrs. DICKENS, an Edinburg lady, brought up in the stricter doctrines of Presbyterianism, still clings to the religious ideas inculcated in her youth, and naturally wishes her daughters brought up in the same way. The fact of the daughters siding with the father, merely shows that like most young people they approve of these doctrines that offer more freedom, and are generally more attractive in appearance at least."

A VERY MELANCHOLY CASUALTY—A SON OF JUDGE SELDEN DROWNED.—We were deeply pained this morning on the receipt of a telegram announcing the melancholy fact that the eldest son of Judge SELDEN, of the Court of Appeals, aged 12 years, was drowned yesterday in Irondequoit Bay, near Rochester, where the Judge resides. He had gone to the bay, in company with his father, for the purpose of learning to swim. It was while the father was teaching his boy that the accident occurred. But we have not heard the particulars of the sad event. The stricken family will have the warm sympathies of the public in their terrible bereavement.—Albany Evening Journal, June 26.

The following note exhibits the action of the "Local Board" upon a case that lately came before Justice STRONG:

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, June 23, 1858.
TRUSTEES' ROOM, TENTH WARD.

JOSEPH W. MAYNES, Esq.—Dear Sir: At a meeting of School Officers of the Tenth Ward, held this date, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the School Officers of the Tenth Ward having carefully and impartially examined into and investigated a charge brought against Mr. MAYNES, Principal of Grammar School No. 20, by Mr. FOWLER, of severe and unusual punishment of his son, do, after mature deliberation, decide the case dismissed. By order. (Signed,)

PETER PARKS, Secretary.

The Annual Commencement of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., occurs on Thursday next, July 1, instead of the third Thursday of July, as in previous years. The annual meeting of the House of Convocation will be held on Wednesday.

STEALING A GOVERNOR'S HORSE AND BUGGY.—At 2½ o'clock Saturday afternoon Governor Pinckney, having occasion to visit Blackwell's Island, left his horse and buggy standing at the ferry foot of Fifty-ninth-street. A young Irishman, named James Ryan, took a fancy to the establishment, untied the horse, jumped into the buggy, and whipping up the animal, started off at dashing speed. Arriving at Broadway, he endeavored to dispose of the property, but not being successful in the attempt to find a purchaser, he drove on to the west side of the City. Officer Board, of the Twenty-second Precinct, suspecting from his actions that he had not obtained possession of the property honestly, took him into custody. The horse and buggy were delivered to their owner, and the thief was handed over to Justice Brownell.

MAD DOGS.—Three mad dogs were killed on Sunday, in the Sixteenth Ward—luckily before they had done any injury.

POPULAR HATS AT POPULAR PRICES.—The prevailing excitement just now is in reference to the Summer Hat. KNOX started it. People prophesied that after he had "set the ball in motion," by the beauty of his last production, he would be unable to supply the demand for it; but KNOX is equal to any emergency, and he is sending his customers away delighted with the possession of a Summer Hat, the excellence of which cannot be too highly extolled. Call at KNOX's, No. 212 Broadway, and make your selections.

ASTHMA CURED BY DR. H. JAMES' GERMAN [illegible]

NEW HAVEN, Ocean Co., N. J., Oct. 12, 1857.

G. P. RUNYON, No. 10 Grand-street, Jersey City, N. J.

DEAR SIR: Amid the many pathies and isms of the day, it is really gratifying to know that some one can come out of Nazareth, i.e. that a remedy is at last found for what are termed incurable diseases. One who has had long years of experience in the medical profession, Dr. H. JAMES' Extract of Canada Indian has been proved by me to possess all the virtues you have claimed for it, and to be the great remedy for all diseases of the throat, throat and lungs. My mother, having had the Asthma for twenty-nine years, has been treated by the leading faculty of New-York and Philadelphia, and been told by five different doctors that her complaint was incurable, and that she never would get well. But Sir, a trial of your medicine has proved the falsity of these gentlemen's opinions, and she is recovering as fast as time will permit. She thinks that had she not taken the Cannabis Indica in season, she could not have lived through the past Summer. I have been troubled with the Liver Complaint, and a very bad cough, and suffered with chronic costiveness for many years. Through the use of the Extract Cannabis Indica, and the Purifying and Regulating Pill, these complaints are now thoroughly eradicated, and my bowels are as regular as could be desired. Consumption is a hereditary disease in my family, but with your valuable medicines at hand I shall never fear its attack.

Respectfully yours, JOHN W. EUSTIS.

Price $2 per bottle. Sent to any part of the United States by Express. All orders and communications should be addressed to O. F. GARDNER, Proprietor, Dr. H. JAMES' Remedies, No. 10 Grand-street, Jersey City, N. J.

COUNTRY RESIDENCES.

ELEGANT COUNTRY RESIDENCES
AT NORTHAMPTON, MASS.

Two or three of the most beautiful, highly cultivated, first-class estates in western Massachusetts are offered for sale.

Northampton is one of the most charming spots in America; abounding in rich scenery of river, valley and mountain, resembling, in picturesque and varied landscape, some of the best portions of English scenery.

The town, (which was one of the earliest settlements in New England,) has long been noted for the intelligence and refinement of its society, and possesses, in a high degree, the advantages of literary, educational and religious institutions.

To families desirous of retiring from city life, an opportunity is here presented for securing country seats which are unsurpassed for elegance and comfort. Apply to A. W. THAYER, Northampton, Massachusetts.

COTTAGE FOR SALE AT TARRYTOWN.—A first-class brick Gothic cottage, very slightly situated, within half a mile of the railroad station and steamboat landing, in the suburbs of this beautiful village, commanding a fine view of the river for many miles. The house is large, containing two fine parlors, with marble mantles, dining-room, library, eight fine bedrooms, kitchen, with cooking range, cellars with hot air furnace, and abundance of water, closets, &c., &c. It was built in the best manner, under the owner's constant inspection, and for his residence, with hollow walls, which effectually exclude dampness, and promote coolness in Summer and warmth in Winter. The lot is large, containing three-quarters of an acre of ground, with profusion of fruit and shade trees and shrubbery, a first-rate garden a well of superior water, a commodious carriage-house, &c. Will be sold with or without furniture. Possession given at an early day, if desired. Terms, which are moderate, made known on application to $400,000

CITY OF LOUISVILLE, KY., WATER WORKS BONDS.—The subscribers offer for sale $400,000 of the 6 per cent. Bonds of the City of Louisville, Ky., issued for construction of Water Works, maturing May 1, 1867, principal and interest payable in the City of New-York. The bonds are secured by (besides the faith of the city) the pledge of the stock of the Water Company, and an irrepealable tax of 10 cents on each $100 of all the real and personal estate of the city. The charter confers on the city full power to contract debts and issue bonds.

The present debt of the city is $3,201,000
With assets consisting of real estate stock &c., of 4,016,782
The assessed value of taxable property of the city for 1857 amounted to $23,626,954

More than one-half of the present city indebtedness is contingent, as the several railroads and the Gas Company, to wham $1,625,000 of the bonds are issued, are bound to provide for the interest and principal. The dividends of the gas stock having already retired $80,000 of the original issue to that Company, and the Louisville and New-York Railroad Company has retired $100,000 of the issue to it, with a large sinking fund applicable to the balance. The Lebanon Branch Road has mortgaged its property to secure its covenant to retire the bonds and the ability of the other Companies to fulfill their contracts is not questioned.

The population of the city is 70,000

Copies of the charter of the city, the ordinance under which the bonds were issued, the deed of trust of the Water Company's stock to Commissioners of Sinking Fund, and all other information concerning the bonds, may be had on application to CLARK, DODGE & CO., No. 51 Wall-st.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, MINNESOTA, St. PAUL, May 28, 1858.

OFFICIAL.—STATE OF MINNESOTA.—PROPOSALS INVITED FOR LOAN OF TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.—In accordance with the act of the Legislature of Minnesota, approved March 12, 1858, whereby the Governor and Treasurer of said State are authorized to dispose of the Bonds of the State to the amount of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, said Bonds being made payable in nine years from the time they are negotiated, at a rate of interest not exceeding ten per cent, payable semi-annually in the City of New-York, notice is hereby given that proposals will be received by the undersigned for the whole of said amount, (the Bonds to be issued in sums of $1,000 each,) at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in the City of New-York, until the last day of July next, the money to be paid in American coin, upon the delivery of the Bonds in New-York City. No bids will be received for these Bonds except at their par value, nor at a greater rate of interest than that specified in the act aforesaid, and the Bonds will be awarded to the bidder offering to receive them at the lowest rate of interest. As the interest on the Bonds will be made payable on the first of July, and the first of January, in each year, the successful bidder will be required to pay to the Treasurer the difference in interest from the first of July to the day upon which the money is paid

THREE DAYS LATER FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Arabia at Halifax.

The Steamship Indian Empire Run on the Rocks in Galway Harbor.

Abolition of the Slave-trade in the English Parliament.

DECLARATIONS OF THE EARL OF MALMESBURY.

Conciliatory Spirit Relative to the Late Outrages.

Cotton Further Declined—Breadstuffs Very Dull—Consols Easier.

HALIFAX, Monday, June 28.

The Royal Mail steamship Arabia, Capt. Stone, from Liverpool on the afternoon of Saturday, June 19, arrived at Halifax at 1:30 P. M. on Monday the 28th.

The Arabia reports, June 9, passed the steamship Africa bound East.

June 16, in lat. 49° 20', long. 44° 25', exchanged signals with a barque, supposed to belong to the Inman line, steaming West, in company with her. (Possibly the Niagara. The cable would have been landed in lat. 52° 52', long. 38° 36', which would appear that the ground had not been touched.)

June 18, lat. 50° 20', long. 42° 23', exchanged signals with a barque Indian, bound east.

The Arabia also reports the wind during the passage from south to southwest and variable. On Friday, the 18th, lat. 50° 6', long. 41°, wind west southwest, and blowing a gale; after that the weather fine and wind still southerly. On the whole, the weather the Arabia experienced was not as moderate as usual in the month of June.

The steamer Indian Empire was appointed to leave Galway for Halifax and New-York on the 16th inst., but as she was entering Galway harbor she ran upon a sunken rock, and remained two hours, but got off uninjured. The two pilots in charge of her had been committed for wilfully causing the disaster. The vessel was detained till the 19th. Her advices are the same as those per the Arabia.

The steamer New-York was going to pieces, and fears were entertained that very little of her valuable cargo would be saved.

Nothing important had transpired in Parliament.

The Crown Princess of Sweden had given birth to a son.

The Dublin elections had resulted in favor of the Ministry, and against the claims of the German Diet.

Prussia, it was rumored, was about to increase her navy.

The King of the Belgians had arrived in England, on a visit to Queen Victoria.

The insurrection in Candia ended peaceably.

Considerable modification of the Belgian Cabinet was spoken of, but not on political grounds.

The Rev. Dr. Isaac Scurrie, one of the principal ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is dead, after 50 years spent in the ministry.

A company has been formed for a submarine telegraph between England and India, via the Red Sea, with a capital of $1,000,000.

Lengthy details of the Indian news had been received, including the march into Rohilcund, but contain nothing important in addition to the telegrams taken out by the Persia. Russell, the special correspondent of the London Times, had been prostrated by sun-stroke.

The Indian Empire also takes out news that the steamer City of Washington, from New-York, and North American, from Portland, arrived at Liverpool on the morning of the 17th.

The news proper per Arabia will be found below.

GREAT BRITAIN.

On the 17th, in the House of Lords, the Bishop of Oxford presented a petition from Jamaica, touching the Spanish Slave-trade, and called the attention of the House generally to the question. He contended that the present threatening aspect of affairs in the West was occasioned by having so long permitted Spain to break her treaty engagements, and to continue Cuba as a provocative of dangerous extremities.

If Spain would at once give up the slave-trade and convert Cuba into a colony for employing free African labor, the desire which many persons in the United States had expressed to annex the island would be removed.

Lord Brougham supported the petition and strongly condemned the policy of Spain.

Earl Malmesbury deeply regretted that the efforts of England to suppress the Slave trade, had not been seconded by other nations. With regard to the recent unhappy differences, he had admitted to the American Government, as a question of international law, that England was not entitled to insist upon the right of search, but had also put it strongly to the American Government, whether they would continue to permit their flag to be prostituted to the worst of purposes, and he had urged the necessity of Ocean police, and that some understanding should be come to between the different maritime nations, which would enable the nationality of vessels to be clearly verified without any danger of a breach of international law. He had every reason to believe, from a conversation he had had with the American Minister, that some such arrangement might be come to.

With regard to Spain it was notorious that hitherto the moral support which she had received from England had materially aided her in resisting the wishes of the United States to annex Cuba, but if she still persisted in supporting the Slave-trade, it was highly probable that the present anxiety of Great Britain would be exchanged for indifference.

Earl Grey was sorry there should be any attempts to renew the Slave-trade. He thought the United States and France solely responsible for the revival. With regard to the question of international law, so far as he understood it, an American vessel, filled with slaves, might leave Africa, without England being enabled to interfere with her, notwithstanding a perfect knowledge of her character.

Earl Ashburton said this definition of international law was quite correct.

Other peers spoke on the subject, when the petition was ordered to lie on the table.

In the Commons a further debate took place on the India resolutions, when it was agreed to that the Government should withdraw the remaining resolutions and introduce a regular India bill, which was forthwith done, and the debate was fixed for the following week.

Mr. Bankes asked whether, seeing that the marines and small armed men of the American Navy are armed with breech loading rifles, by which a man can fire three times for once for an opponent armed with the old weapon, any steps had been taken to place the naval forces of Great Britain on an equality.

Sir J. Pakington said the trials were going on, and that when the result was ascertained measures would be adopted in accordance with them.

On the 18th, in the House of Lords, the proceedings were unimportant.

In the House of Commons Mr. Fitzgerald, in reply to an inquiry whether the Plenipotentiaries to China had been restricted in their powers, said there was no truth in the statement to that effect. The Plenipotentiaries had full discretionary power to negotiate at Canton or Pekin, or proceed North, as they thought fit.

Debate then took place on the American imbroglio.

Mr. Fitzgerald, in reply to Mr. Bauer, stated that the Government had received no further information in reference to the alleged outrages. It was quite possible that the commanders of some vessels had exceeded their duties, and if they had, the Government would be ready to make an ample and frank acknowledgment. It was obvious that the cases which had been published were grossly exaggerated. In proof of this he took several cases, and added that the American flag had been abused by those who were not Americans for the vilest purposes. He had entire confidence that when those circumstances were known, and when the disposition of this country was known, all the difficulties would be amicably arranged. The Government, acting under the advice of the crown lawyers, had given up the right of search and of visit in time of peace, but the Government had invited America to join in maintaining an ocean police. It was under consideration whether the squadron should be withdrawn from the Chinese waters, and replaced on the coast of Africa, and strong instructions had been sent to prevent any Britisher assisting the slightest pretension of the American Government.

Mr. Disraeli said the statement of Mr. Fitzgerald was most satisfactory and satisfactory, but the explanation had not been indicated by America. The language used in the American Congress was unworthy of a great country. They had always assumed that England wished to insult them, but he hoped they would now learn that she had no such desire. Lies had been told in the American papers for the purpose of pandering to bad habits, and he would not believe that the commanders had done anything to call for the censure of our own Government.

Lord John Russell said if the Government conducted the affair in the temperate spirit manifested by the Under-Secretary, there could be no doubt that the House of Commons would not hesitate for a moment to give them its support.

Lord Palmerston said the cruisers had been sent into the Cuban waters in consequence of the wishes of Parliament and of deputations to the Government, and also in compliance with the wish of the American Government themselves. He hoped her Majesty's Government would urge the American Government to send out cruisers to prevent the abuse of the flag of the United States, which had been the cause of the difficulty.

Mr. Disraeli said the best dispatch that could be sent to America was the calm and dispassionate spirit in which the House of Commons was discussing the question. He added that the American Government had been invited to engage in measures to protect each country against abuses of its flag. He had confidence that the existing misconceptions would speedily disappear. He was not annoyed at American ships-of-war being sent into Cuban waters, because they would have sea for themselves when had taken place.

The subject was then dropped.

Admiral Sir Charles Napier, Senior Admiral of the British Navy, died on the 16th inst.

The debate in the House of Lords, on the Slave-trade, attracts the general attention of the Press.

The Times says:

"At the present time it is evident that the struggle against the Slave-trade had reached an important crisis. It hangs on a thread whether the policy of England during the last thirty years shall be abandoned or retained. The three States which, from present power or their former prosperity, have the least diary in the matter are manifestly at issue with England."

It then proceeds to argue that the United States and France are equally guilty with Spain, and says it will never do to attempt coercion with weak Spain, and at the same time wink at the delinquencies of the more powerful States.

The London Post argues that England has done its duty in the matter, and that it rests with the people of the United States to say whether they will do theirs.

The Daily News on the same subject, urges the cultivation of Cotton in Africa, as the best solution of the difficulty.

Mr. Lyons, Secretary of Legation at Florence, who conducted the recent negotiations with Naples, is appointed Minister to Tuscany.

General Van Straubenzee, Commander of the British forces in China, is made a Knight Commander of the Bath.

A serious collision occurred on the London and Northwestern Railroad, near Huddersfield, by which three persons were killed and nine seriously wounded.

THE LATEST.

The London Times, on the 19th, in a leader, congratulates the Government on having taken the advice of the law officers of the Crown, whose decided opinion is that by international law we have no right of search—no right of visitation whatever in time of peace. Upon that opinion, Lord Derby and his colleagues are prepared to act by the law of nations. No English cruiser has the smallest right to interfere with any ship bearing the flag of the United States, save in so far as that right has been conferred by treaty. They will, therefore, withdraw the blockading squadron from the Cuban waters, and there is an end of our differences with the States upon this disgraceful subject.

The arrivals of Australian gold for the week exceed £400,000, and other vessels, discovering still more than this, were looked for in a few days.

The Funds were flat on Friday, and declined ¼. There was a further increase in the demand for money.

The Morning Herald says there is an augmenting absorption of money for trading purposes, and that the evidence of this fully afforded by the character of the paper which is passing through the hands of the bankers and discount brokers, particularly that received from Liverpool and Manchester, in London.

Business prospects are also spoken of with more confidence, and the favorable state of the weather will assist to encourage transactions.

FRANCE.

The substitution of M. de Sacaze for General Espinasse, in the Ministry of the Interior, is said to give general satisfaction in France.

Letters from Paris report that arrests continue to be made.

The death of Ary Scheffer, the celebrated painter, had been announced.

A doubtful rumor was current that the Duke De Malakoff would soon return to France, and Count De Persigny resume the mission to England.

The Moniteur announces another reduction of interest on the French Treasury Bonds. The rates now range from 3⅝@3¾ ⅌ cent., according to time.

The harvest reports of France are generally encouraging. In the South the yield is expected to be one-fourth if not a third more than last year.

It is positively affirmed that the nomination of Prince Napoleon for the Governorship of Algiers is abandoned.

Napoleon will open the camp at Chalons with great pomp on the 15th of July.

The Three Per Cents. closed on the 18th at 66f. 40c.

The French Mediterranean fleet ordered to Brest, to be present during the Emperor's visit, will consist of 12 screw line of battle-ships, five frigates, four corvettes and a certain number of small steamers.

The festivities at Fontainebleau were over, and the Emperor had returned to Paris.

SPAIN.

The elections in Spain are fixed to take place in October.

RUSSIA.

Russian imperial paper currency to the amount of twelve million silver roubles had been publicly burnt at St. Petersburg, with the view of stimulating public confidence.

TURKEY.

Two Turkish steamers landed nearly 1,200 troops at the Bay of Bavosa on the 13th of June.

A Russian war-steamer was anchored off Ragusa.

The Montenegrins are said to have retired to a mountain from Grahovva.

A letter of a compromising character from Saffa Pacha to the Russian Commander, had been intercepted and sent to Constantinople.

Several hundred houses have been burnt at Constantinople.

A Vienna letter positively contradicts the statement that a Convention has been concluded between Austria and Turkey relative to Montenegro.

Arrival of the Anglo-Saxon at Quebec.

QUEBEC, Monday, June 28.

The Canadian Company's screw steamer Anglo-Saxon, from Liverpool on Wednesday, the 16th inst., arrived at this port at 10 o'clock yesterday (Sunday) forenoon.

The Anglo-Saxon came through the Straits of Belleisle.

Her advices have been anticipated by the dispatch of the Ariel's news from Cape Race.

The U. S. Mail steamship Fulton, from New-York, arrived at Cowes on the 19th.

The R. M. steamship Niagara, from Boston and Halifax, arrived at Liverpool on the 18th.

The Anglo-Saxon saw nothing of the telegraph fleet.

The latest London papers by the steamer Anglo-Saxon, the Times and Daily News of the 16th inst., contain nothing later from India; but the official dispatch to the East India Company gives full details of the news per the Persia.

The garrison at Shahjehanpore was relieved by Brigadier Jones.

The rebels had stormed and retaken Chundere, which had been left in charge of the Scinclahr troops.

The rebels had also seized Sultanpore and Thalbut.

Shanghae dates are to April 19. Exchange had receded to 6s. 1d.

Letters from Hong Kong say that Commissioner Reed, as well as the other Foreign Plenipotentiaries, had gone north.

Rumors were current at Canton that the Chinese intended to destroy the dwellings occupied by foreigners on the Honan side of the river, where they would meet with little resistance. The foreigners had been warned of the danger.

It was reported that the City of Nankin had been taken by the Imperial troops, but this lacked confirmation.

The United States steamer Sam Jacinto and sloop Germantown were at Hong. The Minnesota was at the Gulf of Pechelee, and the Minnesota and Antelope were at Shanghae. The frigate Pembroke was at Singapore enroute for Hong Kong.

Wreck of the Steamship New-York.

GLASGOW, Tuesday, June 15.

The steamship New-York went ashore on the Mull of Kintyre, on the night of Saturday, the 12th inst. A dense fog prevailed at the time, to which the accident was due. The passengers were all safely landed. The ship is in a very dangerous position; there is little hope of saving her or much of her cargo. There is reason to fear that last night's breeze finished the vessel.

Commercial Intelligence by the Arabia.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

The Brokers' Circular reports the sales of Cotton for the week, 32,000 bales, of which speculators took 1,000 bales, and exporters 3,000. MONDAY, June 28—P. M.

The Official averages of the Banks in the City of New-York for the last week, ending Saturday, June 26—the particulars of which are advertised by each bank separately, on another page of this paper—present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous weekly statement of June 19:

Decrease in Loans	$1,098,934
Decrease in Specie	448,367
Decrease in Circulation	31,942
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	854,750

Including the interchanges of the week between the Banks through the Clearing-house, (the average of which is deducted from the gross line of Deposits to ascertain the amount undrawn,) and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday afternoon, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	June 26, 1858.	June 19, 1858.	June 27, 1857.
Capital	$66,442,609	$66,717,000	$66,717,500

The full effect of the recent exchanges by the Banks of a portion of the Gold for Treasury Bills, is told on the Loan and Specie lines to-day, which was not the case on the previous average. The additional falling off in Specie is less than this negotiation would otherwise have shown, in consequence of the receipt of some parcels of Gold from the neighboring cities. The present average will be enhanced this week by the California remittances which go into bank to-day. The business of the week probably starts on an actual Specie stock of thirty-three and a half millions. We look for a decline in the Loan column for a week or two to come, now that nearly all the floating Treasury Bills of the Government have found their way into the Banks and Trust Companies. The next loan of the Treasury Department will be on a 5 ⅌ cent. stock, payable in fifteen years, under the late act of Congress. The first half of the amount authorized—say $10,000,000—will be awarded on the 10th of August to the highest unconditional bidders; the money to be paid into the Treasury by the 1st of September. The following is the official advertisement:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 26, 1858.

Sealed proposals will be received at this Department until 12 o'clock, noon, of Monday, the 9th of August next, for ten millions of stock of the United States to be issued under the act of 14th June instant. Said stock will be reimbursable in fifteen years from the 1st of January next, and bear interest at 5 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year.

No bid will be received below par, and none for any fraction of one thousand dollars. No bid will be considered unless one per centum of the amount is deposited, subject to the order of the Secretary of the Treasury, with a depositary of the United States, whose certificate of the same must accompany the bid. In all cases the bids must be unconditional, and without reference to bids of others, and must state the premium offered therein.

The sealed proposals should be indorsed on the outside of the envelope, "Proposals for Loan of 1858," and be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C. The same which may be accepted from any bidder will be required to be paid to the depositary of the United States nearest to his residence, or indicated as most convenient by him. Should bids be accepted from parties not residing within the United States, they will be required to deposit the principal and premium with the assistant Treasurers at Boston, New-York, Philadelphia or New-Orleans.

Certificates of stock for sums of one thousand dollars each, payable to the successful bidders or bearer, with coupons of semi-annual interest from the 1st of January next, also payable to bearer, attached thereto, will be issued for the amount of the accepted bids upon the certificates of deposit to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States with the depositaries of the United States. The stock will in all cases bear interest from the date of such deposit. The interest from that date to the 1st of January will be paid to the successful bidder or his attorney by the depositary where the deposit was made.

Successful bidders will be required to deposit the principal and premium of their accepted bids on or before the first day of September next. The preliminary deposit of 1 ⅌ cent. will be immediately directed to be returned to the unsuccessful bidders.

HOWELL COBB,
Secretary of the Treasury.

The present week is expected to be marked by more than the usual movement of Money, in preparation for the heavy interest and other payments on the 1st and 4th of July. But there is no sign of altered price, either at call or on short paper, to-day. The demand for Exchange for the Boston packet also opens sluggishly. Terms for the actual transactions are light. The rates on London, however, are held steady at 109¼@109½ for bank bills, and on Paris 5.12½. The Brokers at the close of 'Change hour were nearly all complaining of a dull packet.

After the half-holiday of Saturday the Stock Exchange people were somewhat better disposed to business to-day, although the heat of the weather is still the subject of drawback, so far as active speculation is concerned. The prices of most of the Railways were firmer than on Saturday. New-York Central brought, in the course of the dealings, 82¼ ⅌ cent.; Rock Island, 73½; Reading, 45; and Galena, 84¼@¾, an average rise of ¼@¾ ⅌ cent. The last printed sales of Erie were at 17¾, and Hudson River, 37 ⅌ cent. After the close of the Second Board there was less firmness in the bidding rates, though no press of either contract or cash stock. Reading was ¼@½ weaker than on the top sales of the day. The announcement of the Nicaragua Transit arrangement for Mr. Vanderbilt, as announced in the Times this morning, caused a decline of 3¼@4¼ ⅌ cent. in Pacific Mail shares. The sales on Saturday were 78¼@78¾. The stock opened this morning at 75, declined to 74, and recovered in the afternoon to 75¼ ⅌ cent. Illinois Central Bonds were steady at 85 ⅌ cent., but the bids for the shares fell off to 75 ⅌ cent., and they were offered at 79 ⅌ cent. There was no business done on the stock. The decline is of course attributable to the additional assessment of $20 the share, just ordered by the Board of Management. In part payment of this, the recently issued 10 year bonds, of which $1,900,000, out of $3,200,000 authorized, have been taken up by the English and other shareholders, will be received at par, leaving the privilege scrip attached to these bonds to the holder. The reasons for the assessment are set forth in the following:

CIRCULAR TO ACCOMPANY ASSESSMENT.

To the Shareholders of the Illinois Central Railroad Co.:

Referring to the annexed notice of a call of $20 ⅌ share, the Directors deem it proper to make a brief explanation of the circumstances which, in their judgment, require the assessment to be made. The imperative duty of relieving the Company from the assignments into which it was forced by the pressure of the late financial crisis, has at no time since the assignments were made, ceased to be the first care of the Directors. Two modes only of doing this presented themselves—either by a loan or an assessment on the shares sufficient to discharge the floating debt in full. In deference to the preferences of the shareholders, it was decided to issue proposals for the Optional Right Loan, but in justice to the takers, and the possibility that it might only be partially subscribed for, the bonds were made receivable in payment of any future call upon he stock. Although the large holders of stock, both in this country and in Europe, responded promptly to the appeal of the Directors and subscribed in proportion to their respective interests, many of the smaller holders, relying either upon those having a larger stake in the Company to protect the common interest, or in consequence of the pressure unable to do their part, have neglected to take their share in the bonds. Under these circumstances, in justice to the holders of the Optional Right Bonds, and to the creditors of the Company who have waited patiently for their dues, and in order to restore the Company to its former honorable position, the Directors are clear that assessing the Stock is the only proper course to be pursued, and should no longer be postponed. The condition of the Money market at this time is favorable; and it is to be observed that, as over $2,000,000 of the Optional Right Bonds have been paid for and will be used in the liquidation of this call, the balance only will be required in cash. This amount, with the cash in hand, and the other assets, which will be realized in due time, will enable the Assignees to discharge the unfunded debt and cancel the assignments. As unfounded reports, in regard to the current earnings and expenditures of the Company, have been freely circulated, the Directors deem it proper to state that, although the revenues from the road have been greatly curtailed, they were sufficient during the last four months of 1857 to pay beyond the operating expenses, $501,123 50 of construction expenditures. Although the first six months of this year have been singularly unfavorable upon all the Illinois roads, the heavy rains having rendered the prairies impassable, and reduced the earnings, yet the economy introduced has been such as to enable the Company to pay all construction and operation expenditures, and State tax to the 1st of July, from the current receipts, without incurring local debt, and without any assistance whatever from the New-York office. It is well known that the receipts of the Western roads are usually 50 ⅌ cent. more from the 1st of July to the 31st of December than during the first six months, without materially increasing the operative expenditures. It is expected that the monies received from this source, and from the sales of land applicable to Interest Fund, will be sufficient to meet the bonded interest falling due this Autumn, which will be promptly paid. The general prostration of business, consequent on the recent financial difficulties, has greatly affected the earnings of the road, and interfered with the sale of property in the West. With its great resources and productive soil, the basin of the Mississippi Valley is sure to rise up in its early day, and upon this revival the Directors are confident, and feel that the improved value of the lands of the Company, and the additional traffic arising from the extended improvement and settlement, actually upon the line, will authorize the enterprise in public estimation.

By order of the Board.

J. H. PERKINS, Treasurer.

NEW-YORK, Monday, June 28, 1858.

The following is to-day's business at the office of the Assistant Treasurer:

Receipts	$168,651
Payments	235,[illegible]
Balance	7,279,[illegible]

The receipts include $44,000 from Customs. The payments include $100,000 sent to Washington.

The semi-annual interest due 1st July proxime, on Milwaukee and Mississippi First Mortgage 8 ⅌ Cents, and on the City of Milwaukee 10 ⅌ Cent. Bonds, issued to the road, will be paid as usual at the Company's Office, No. 61 Exchange-place, by drafts on Milwaukee, with exchange added.

MONEY CIRCULAR FOR EUROPE.

NEW-YORK, Monday, June 28, 1858.

Our last advices are under date of 22d inst. The leading financial feature of the week has been the awards of the New-York State Loans, of which we give the details elsewhere. The premiums obtained for 5 ⅌ cent. Stocks denote sufficiently the great abundance of idle capital, and indicate the rate which the projected Federal Loan of $20,000,000 will command. The movements on our Stock Exchange are not of particular interest. Some signs of activity, and a slight rise in prices at the beginning of the week, were succeeded by a dull market and drooping quotations. To-day, however, prices are again firmer. State Stocks.—Trade here been large transactions in Missouri 6s, accompanied by a rise of ⅓ ⅌ cent; Virginia 6s have risen ¼; Tennessee 6s ¼, Kentucky 6s 1, and North-Carolina 6s 2 ⅌ cent. City and County Bonds.—But little has been done in these, and with the exception of some Louisville 6s, guaranteed by the State of Tennessee, we have nothing to mention. Railroad Bonds.—Transactions limited. Galena and Chicago second-mortgage have risen ⅛ ⅌ cent.; Illinois Central Construction Bonds ⅜ ⅌ cent.; Illinois Central Free-land Bonds have declined ⅛ ⅌ cent. Railroad Shares.—Prices have not materially varied, with the exception of Illinois Central Shares, which have fallen 6 ⅌ cent.; Michigan Central Shares are 1¼ lower; and there has been a rise of ¼ on New-York Central, ⅞ on Erie, 1⅛ on Chicago and Rock Island, and 1 ⅌ cent. on Milwaukee and Miss. Money.—No change in rates. Short loans, 4@5 ⅌ cent.; indorsed paper, 4¼@6 ⅌ cent., according to maturity. Foreign Exchanges—are dull. The bulk of business on London has been done at 109¼ to 109⅜; and on Paris at 5.12½ to 5.13⅞.
